Quake Hits Northwest Two Killed in Seattle

BRICKS were shaken loose from tops of stores in Seattle business district near King Street railroad

Falling Bricks Injure Many

(Times News Services)

SEATTLE—A major earthquake hit the Pacific northwest today, causing widespread damage and at least two deaths.

There were scores of injuries, many in Seattle from falling debris as some brick facing on older buildings toppled into the street.

A man, identified as Adolphus Lewis, died when he was hit by falling debris from the King Street railroad station here and another man was killed by falling debris at the Fisher Flour Mill on Harbor Island.

Three women died of heart attacks during the quake in Washington.

Buildings swayed in a score of cities as the occupants streamed into the street.

Grand Coulee Dam, in northeast Washington reported the shock was felt for more than 45 seconds. Some circuits at the big hydro-electric dam were knocked out.

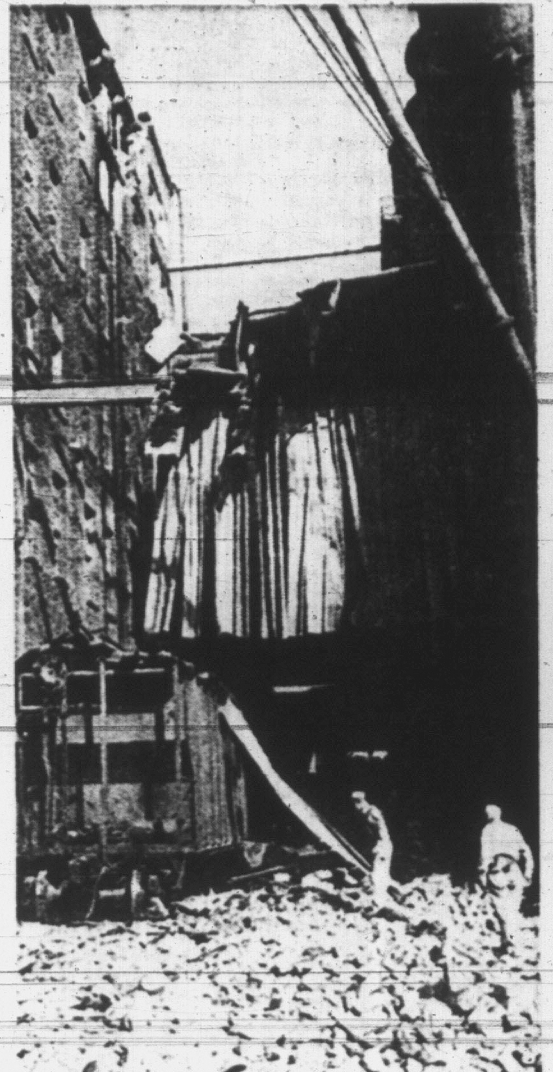

Most damage appeared to be limited to cracked plaster, broken windows and dishes, and snapped wires.

Scientists said there was little danger of a tidal wave.

At Ellensburg, 100 miles east of Seattle, streets were jammed with people who fled from downtown buildings. Some windows were broken and walls cracked.

At Aberdeen, on the coast, the quake was described as a "rolling series of three shocks" that caused buildings to sway. Most were evacuated.

Among the injured in Seattle was a 15-year-old girl whose leg was broken.

Aussies Send Combat Force To Viet Nam

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced tonight that Australia will provide an infantry battalion for service in South Viet Nam.

200 Viet Cong Claimed Dead In 3 Strikes

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. planes and helicopters and South Vietnamese ground forces have killed an estimated 200 Viet Cong guerrillas in three operations ranging from the Mekong Delta in the south to the sandy coastal plains of central Viet Nam, spokesmen said today.

Two Americans were killed and five others wounded in the actions. This brought the toll of U.S. combat fatalities in Viet Nam to 353 since December, 1961.

U.S. aircraft made two raids and South Vietnamese Skyraider fighter-bombers made a third in the continuing air campaign against North Viet Nam's highway system. Results varied from "highly successful" to moderate damage.

START PUSH

Aground, the biggest action was in Kien Hoa province, on the coast 60 miles south of Saigon. Government commanders claimed at least 86 guerrillas were killed and 34 captured in the opening phase Wednesday of an attempt to drive a major Viet Cong force into the South China Sea. The assault forces were reported to have suffered only four wounded.

Meanwhile, in Vinh Long province, two U.S. Army advisers were killed and a third was wounded during heavy fighting 80 miles southwest of Saigon. Government units clashed with an estimated Viet Cong company. Government sources claimed 34 Viet Cong were killed. A U.S. military spokesman said government casualties included 16 killed and 50 wounded.

In a third action in Quang Nam province, government forces reported they had killed 41 and captured 26. Two government troops were killed and 11 wounded.

SPACE NEEDLE DINERS ALMOST WENT IN ORBIT

SEATTLE (AP)—"It was just like riding the top of a flagpole," the manager of Seattle's 608-foot-high Space Needle restaurant said after today's earthquake.

"All we lost was a couple of bottles of booze," reported manager Basil Miaullis. "This place is built to take it."

The restaurant, built as a feature of the 1962 Seattle World's Fair, had 254 persons for breakfast when the quake hit.

"First, we felt a bounce, and then an oscillation—a whipping around," Miaullis said. "Everybody stayed put. No one ran for the elevators. When it was all over, everybody finished breakfast . . ."

Couple Trapped As Car Flattened

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Coughtry, Seattle, were trapped in their flattened car when a huge section of brick roof gable toppled on it in the old part of the city. It took rescuers 15 minutes to free them. They were taken to a hospital for examination.

Workers in Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia, Aberdeen, Everett, Longview, Centralia, and many other cities streamed into the streets after the quake hit.

Buildings shook and swayed over the entire area. Broken windows, water lines and wires were reported by the hundreds.

The quake was described as a series of at least three rolling shocks that lasted for 45 seconds to a minute.

Heavy damage was done to some capitol buildings at Olympia, and the new U.S. post office there was closed for the day because of damage and injuries.

Tremor Causes Alarm in City; Little Damage

The powerful earthquake which hit the Pacific Northwest today caused widespread alarm but little damage in British Columbia.

Striking hardest in Washington, the quake was also felt on Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland as far east as Trail.

A number of Victoria residents expressed concern in calls to police and newspapers immediately after the tremor was felt at 8:29 a.m. But essential services were largely unaffected.

Reports of swaying buildings, bouncing ornaments and rattling windows came in from the Island, Okanagan Valley, north-central B.C. and as far as Trail, 300 miles to the east.

William Milne, a seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich said the tremor jarred the needle on his seismograph "right off the drum."

The full force of the quake registered 7 on the magnitude (Richter) scale. The epicentre of the quake was 30 miles southwest of Seattle.

(The devastating earthquake which struck Alaska last year registered 8.5 on the Richter scale.)

Mr. Milne said the seismograph was still registering tremors a half hour after the initial quake.

Reports of the tremor poured into provincial civil defence headquarters here this morning.

NO SEVERE DAMAGE

"The shocks were felt over a wide part of the province and as far north as Prince Rupert, but there was no severe damage," said W. W. Mathers, director of operations and planning.

There were scattered reports of shattered plaster in buildings on lower Vancouver Island.

Power lines were knocked out for several minutes at up-Island points.

TRIPPED SWITCHES

The shock tripped safety switches in Goward sub-station on Inter-Urban Road, cutting off the power supply to Brentwood, Sidney, Langford, Mill Bay, Colwood, Metcheson and Sooke.

In most places power was back on within four minutes.

At Port Alberni, civil defence and harbor authorities were placed on stand-by when that area received a sharp tremor.

Residents of the port city spent a few anxious moments

U.S. MARINES LAND AT SANTO DOMINGO

400 Killed in Fighting

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI)—U.S. marines took up combat positions around the polo ground refugee centre in Santo Domingo today to protect Americans.

The military overthrew Bosch originally because he was considered too friendly with Cuba's Fidel Castro. Cuban refugees arriving in San Juan from Santo Domingo said the rebels dressed in green fatigue uniforms were "carbon copies" of Castro's revolutionaries.

A force of 400 marines landed Wednesday night to protect Americans still in Santo Domingo, and another 1,000 were standing by in U.S. navy ships offshore. About 1,000 Americans were evacuated to San Juan Wednesday.

The Americans and other foreign nationals were herded into the polo grounds across the street from the Ambassador Hotel, seven miles from the scene of the heaviest fighting in downtown Santo Domingo. The polo grounds themselves were being used for a helicopter ferry service.

Reports from Washington said the French government had de-

No American casualties have been reported.

The fighting was between left forces loyal to ousted President Juan Bosch, now in exile in San Juan, and military units which deposed him in 1963. A rebel move to return him to power began last Saturday.

The so-called loyal force arrayed against the Bosch supporters are under command of Air Force Brig. Gen. Elias Wessin. They appeared to have an edge over the Bosch forces, and Wednesday declared apparently prematurely, that the revolution was crushed.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Organization of American States decided today to call for an immediate ceasefire in the strife-torn Dominican Republic. It also offered its mediation efforts there.

The inter-American body voted to make its ceasefire appeal through the papal representative in Santo Domingo, it was reported.

'Threadbare Pretext'

MOSCOW (AP)—The official Soviet news agency Tass charged the United States today with grossly interfering in the internal affairs of the Dominican Republic by landing marines there.

The Soviet reaction came in a dispatch from a Tass correspondent in Washington.

He said the explanation that the marines landed to ensure the security of U.S. citizens was a "threadbare pretext."

QUAKE REACTION IN CITY

'Seconds ... It Scared Me; Jumped From Tub and Ran'

There was no physical damage reported this morning when an earthquake hit Victoria—but it was the talk of the town.

In a telephone survey by The Times, C. W. LUNDGREN, 850 Cook Street, "The tremor was quite severe. I was standing next to the elevator, heard a rumble in the shaft, only lasted seconds but scared me a bit. There was a lady in the laundry room just putting clothes in the dryer, she dropped everything and ran upstairs."

MRS. VERA HANSEN, 4080 Albany, "I was in the bathtub. I weigh 160 pounds. I went up and down in the water ... the dresser drawers opened ... it was spooky. I got out of the tub and ran downstairs just as I was."

ANDY MCLEMAN, Henry Birks and Sons, "I felt the building shake ... the china displays were noticeably noisy but there was no damage to the sidewalk, cracked outside."

Mrs. Harry Lauder, 818 Kindersley, "oh, that's what it was ... I thought it was a train going by, lasted quite long but didn't think anything about it."

Mrs. Ted Gaskell, 1555 Mosely, "We felt it alright ... first thought it was heavy equipment working outside then the refrigerator rattled. The children were all excited ... there was no time to be scared though ... the kids just went on to school."

Mrs. E. B. Greenhill, 1015 Moss, "I was in bed. It shook for several minutes. I looked in the mirror ... everything looked fuzzy and hazy. (Mrs. Greenhill phoned the Times to check on the tremor and upon being informed it was an earthquake said: "Oh, I'm so glad.")"

J. P. Fraumoun of James Bay, "Never felt anything like it before ... whole building shook."

Mrs. Sidney Roberts of Cadboro Bay, "It was the shakiest feeling I've felt since the one in 1949 ... everything rattled ... it shook the small clock off the TV to the floor. I was in bed asleep when it started but it woke me up and I just lay there waiting for it to stop."

Erik Perth, house manager McPherson Playhouse, "I felt it alright ... I was shaving ... almost cut my head off."

Mrs. G. V. Cord, Shearwater Rest Home, Sidney, "It really shook us up. The dishes fell from the shelves, plants were knocked off the tables, stacks of canned food collapsed and the doors swung back and forth for a few moments. Nobody got hurt."

Les Parkinson, Empress Hotel, "Plaster fell from the ceiling in the old wing ... nothing serious. The guests were not too concerned. Everything appears OK."

Eric Boothroyd, 16 Howe Street, "The whole house shook ... I'm planning to paint the house and I wondered for a moment if there would be any house to paint."

Mrs. Herbert L. Ford, 411 Kingston Street, "The baby's crib rocked from side to side and the whole house shook. The baby was upset by the tremor and all the pictures in the living room are crooked."

The situation around the U.S. embassy was reported quiet.

A spokesman for Bosch said he had received word from Santo Domingo that the U.S. Marines are "doing their duty" and so far are not interfering or meddling in the affairs of the Dominican Republic.

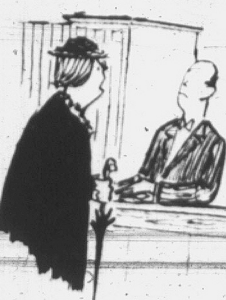

Col. Francisco Camano, described as chief of the pro-Bosch "constitutional forces" in Santo Domingo, said by telephone the marines were observing a policy of strict neutrality.

Camano claimed his forces dominated the situation in Santo Domingo "at this moment" and had seized control of a number of police precincts and surrounding national police headquarters. He said his forces had captured several of Wessin's tanks.

Camano denied he was an admirer of Castro, and said his forces were fighting "only to return freedom to the people and not to take it away."

Bosch said earlier he was in telephone communication with the presidential palace in Santo Domingo and had been told street fighting continued and General Wessin did not control the city. He expressed confidence in his eventual triumph.

Patridge said the battalion had undergone rigorous training and preparation for operation in a Southeast Asian theatre.

He said a number of officers and NCOs in the battalion had seen active service during the Second World War and in Korea and the Malaysian emergency.

An Australian battalion was sent to Malaysia to help local and British security forces combat Indonesian incursions.

ONE WAS KILLED

Australia already has in South Viet Nam about 100 jungle combat advisers and a Royal Australian Air Force transport unit.

The jungle advisers, like their U.S. counterparts, are not classified as combat troops. But they have been in combat areas for months and have suffered casualties in action, including one killed.

The U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, Maxwell D. Taylor, told Italian newspaper men earlier this month that "aside from the United States, the nationals of supporting nations in South Viet Nam number over 3,000."

He said 37 nations have provided support or are about to give support to South Viet Nam. The United States at present has about 22,000 troops serving in South Viet Nam. There have been reports that the number may be increased by more than 5,000 in the next two months.

In Wellington, Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said today New Zealand might send troops to South Viet Nam in a combatant role at any time but at present had no plans to do so.

Holyoake said that about a year ago it was decided to send 26 army engineers to South Viet Nam in a non-combatant role.

Wage Talks Snarled In Trucker Dispute

Disputing teamsters and trucking management officials on the mainland were negotiating again today following a breakdown in talks Wednesday.

Deputy Labor Minister William Sands was acting as conciliator today in an attempt to end a labor dispute that has tied up about 1,000 trucks and snarled about 70 per cent of Greater Vancouver's cartage industry.

The dispute, between the Teamsters' and Auto motive Transport Labor Relations Association came to a head earlier this week when 19 companies locked out 1,400 truckers, swappers and warehousemen.

The union followed with strikes at 16 other companies employing about 600 men.

"The union is seeking wage increases and a job security clause in their new contracts with trucking officials."

W. J. Morris, secretary of the Labor Relations Association, said today there has been a narrowing of the issues but the contracts were still unacceptable.

building, which suffered severely, and all other buildings in the Capitol complex were left with only skeleton crews.

The Capitol evacuation brought a temporary halt to the 29th legislature, now in the 106th day of a record regular and special session.

One legislator joked it took an act of God "to get us out of there." The Democratic-controlled legislature and Republican governor have been at loggerheads over the $2,200,000,000 budget and taxes to balance it.

The quake, the strongest recorded in the Pacific Northwest since the April, 1949, temblor in which seven were killed, caused the huge chandelier in the legislative building's rotunda to sway in an arc of approximately one foot.

The bronze chandelier weighs five tons and is supported from the 185-foot-high rotunda dome ceiling on a 100-foot length of chain.

Tacoma Street Littered With Debris

At Tacoma, 30 miles south of here, one of the main downtown streets, Pacific Avenue, was littered with bricks and debris. The Union Railway Station apparently suffered the worst damage.

A number of bridges in Seattle were closed temporarily because of light damage.

Eastbound lanes of a draw bridge over the Duwamish Waterway in Seattle were closed to all traffic except transit coaches because of a drop in the road level.

Women prisoners in the city jail began screaming "Get us out of here. Let us out of here, please," as the building shook.

In Tacoma, 30 miles to the south, one of the main downtown streets, Pacific Avenue, was littered with bricks and debris.

At Everett, 26 miles north, the state patrol radio tower toppled, streets buckled and some water lines broke. Boulders came rolling down onto the Stevens Pass Highway from St. Peris east of Everett, causing some damage.

Gas mains broke here and in Puyallup, about 30 miles to the south.

All traffic on the Tacoma Narrows Bridge was stopped, at least temporarily, on orders from the state highways department.

A department spokesman said bolts on the bridge were sheared and one light pole was down. All glass in the roadway lights on the bridge was broken.

Engineers were making a foot-by-foot examination of the bridge.

The department also said cracks appeared in the highway between Manchester and Port Orchard on the Kitsap Peninsula. Other highways and bridges in the quake-affected area were being checked systematically for damage.

Several schools here and in other cities were closed for the day because of damage to the buildings. There were no immediate reports of any injuries to students.

Power lines were shaken down in the Longview-Kelso area in southwestern Washington. Mrs. Art Baker of Kelso was burned when she came into contact with a wire fence which had been touched by a fallen power line.

The Weyerhaeuser Co. pulp mill at Kelso was shut down because of a lack of power.

No major damage was reported in Oregon, but the quake was felt in widespread areas.

HONOLULU (AP)—A conference dedicated to finding means of improving tidal wave warning systems has drawn delegates from 11 nations to Hawaii.

The 50 oceanographers and seismologists are clearly bent on one goal—to protect their people from the devastating blows of sea waves generated by earthquakes.

One purpose is the possible integration of Japanese and Russian warning systems with the international seismic wave warning network.

Russia's delegate, dispelled any worries over his nation's co-operation. Dr. Yuriy V. Tarbeyev, 38-year-old oceanographer, expressed his appreciation to Japan and the United States for their aid in exchanging data.

"We would not be here," the Russian said, "if we did not want to co-operate."

Tarbeyev said Russia plans substantial increases in the number of tidal stations in the Soviet far east that would be capable of supporting an international warning system.

Soviet co-operation with the Hawaii-centred U.S. seismic sea wave warning system could prove valuable, especially in speeding alerts in the case of waves triggered by undersea earthquakes off the Kamchatka Peninsula of Siberia.

Another goal of the conference is to explore methods of speeding communications to provide more tidal warning time.

The scientist hope to end their conference Friday with some solid recommendations to their governments for improvement of the warning system.

JOINT POLICE, FIRE URGED BY EDGELOW

Amalgamated Greater Victoria police and fire departments were proposed Wednesday by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow after city council estimates committee passed all but $3,500 of 1965 city police estimates.

The approved budget was for $906,183, an increase of $66,487, of which police salaries account for $725,623.

Ald. Edgelow proposed a resolution suggesting a survey of fire and police departments to determine "how much we could save as amalgamated departments serving the four municipalities."

"Salaries are going up so much each year I can't help but feel we could get something moving that the taxpayers would appreciate," the alderman said.

He pointed out a positive move was made Tuesday for the Greater Victoria region to work together to provide parkland.

S. Viet Nam Wants North Invasion

SAIGON (AP) — Brig-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, commander of South Viet Nam's air force, advocated Wednesday an immediate invasion of North Viet Nam by South Vietnamese land forces.

Meanwhile, U.S. Marines launched their biggest offensive of the war, fanning out over the jungles by foot and helicopter in search of Viet Cong forces.

Brig. Ky conditionally ruled out participation of U.S. troops in his invasion plan, but said:

"With some secret biases of our own, up there the Viet Cong would quickly start wondering whether the war was worth it."

He questioned effectiveness of the air strikes against highways, railways and bridges in North Viet Nam, saying they were not choking off aid from Hanoi to the guerrillas.

Brig. Ky's proposal of a complementary land operation, most outspoken by a South Vietnamese leader in recent weeks, was believed to reflect the overall official views of Premier Phan Huy Quai's government and the Saigon high command.

Size of the Marine force which struck out from Da Nang missile and air base was not known, but believed to involve several companies.

There were unconfirmed reports that more Leathernecks would soon join the 10,000 now stationed at Da Nang.

UN LACKS AUTHORITY

Defend Hill to Death Vows Turkish-Cypriot

By PETE LOUDON

Times Staff Reporter

ST. HILARION CASTLE
On the highest peak in Cyprus, in a crumbling castle once besieged by Richard the Lion Heart, today I met the leader of a Turkish-Cypriot guerrilla force.

With his hand on the icy butt of an automatic pistol he nodded toward Greek-Cypriot bunkers on nearby lesser peaks and told me, "Unless we die, they cannot capture this place."

I was brought here under a UN flag escorted by Lieut. M. G. "Mick" Brown, 22, of Victoria's Queen's Own Rifles. Only after sticky negotiations which meant forsaking my camera, was it possible to make the 2,300-foot ascent through hillside barbed wire crawling with tough Turkish-Cypriot irregulars.

Green Line

We crossed the Green Line out of the Greek-Cypriot zone near Nicosia. First the Greek-Cypriots passed us, then the UN guards and finally the Turkish-Cypriots. The latter, in sweat-soaked civilian clothes, seemed constantly under arms, and under tension.

On the mountain top where the red flag of Turkey flies over the battlements of this ancient stone castle, we were escorted into the command post of the man who calls himself simply "Yaman."

We were seated in a stone-walled room which contained a plain box desk, two field telephones, an oil lamp, a huge wall map of Turkey, a Turkish water pipe, two Players Please ashtrays and half a hundred flies.

Unshaven Guard

Also in the office were a modern transistor radio and an unshaven guard in a green sweater and greasy trousers.

When Yaman arrived he ticked us off for being late, identified himself as a former Nicosia high school physical training teacher. Standing about five-six he is muscular, clean shaven and surprisingly unmenacing in grey sweater and blue sport shirt, despite his holstered automatic.

He said his men are of the average age of 20 and mainly are trained in the mountains. They are all volunteers, he said. (Later, I was told one who deserted and sought asylum with the UN was retrieved and summarily shot at the castle. The UN can't take sides.)

Yaman said there is no solution to the Cyprus troubles but partition.

"We can't live together with the Greek people. We want

LONE SENTINEL at UN outpost on Cyprus road is symbolic of the job undertaken by Victoria's Queen's Own Rifles. In the background the Kyrenia Mountains can be seen—the scene of today's interview with a Turkish-Cypriot guerrilla leader. the UN to stay here, but the UN cannot solve our complaints. There is no move toward permanent peace on Cyprus.

Lack Authority

Later, he admitted that he does obtain food and water from Nicosia and said UN troops do serve to keep the peace. But they lack sufficient authority, he feels. The Greek-Cypriots now control all roads to the coast and all Cyprus harbors. He wants these under UN control, he says.

"And the Greeks get heavy weapons, tanks, and no one prevents that. The UN has 6,000 troops here and the Greek-Cypriots have 20 to 30,000. The UN could not stop a Greek attack. The UN power and strength is not enough."

The UN will never make a built one of the most picturesque and fabled castles in all the world, would be turned into rubble.

If you put one Greek and one Turk in one room the Greek says "If I sleep, he kills me" and the Turk says, "If I sleep he kills me."

Air Force

Yaman says he has no direct contact with Turkey. Other observers here say otherwise. They say the badly outnumbered and out-gunned Turks are under the protective wing of the Turkish air force 50 miles away and that this is the real peace-keeping fact in Cyprus today.

They cannot take us," says Yaman.

But some of the war experts here say St. Hilaire would be a fine target for the missiles the Greek-Cypriot forces claim to have imported. If it comes to that, Yaman may escape by using the tunnels which honeycomb his mountain top—but one of the most picturesque and fabled castles in all the world, would be turned into rubble.

MACHINE TO SPAWN SALMON

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Washington's Skagit River watershed may one day be the home of salmon spawned by an "iron mother."

That's what the state fisheries department has dubbed a machine it is developing to plant fish eggs in incubation channels.

It is one way the department is hoping to increase salmon production in the Skagit. Other possibilities being studied, the department reported Wednesday, are controlled incubation channels, a natural rearing ponds and artificial spawning beaches in the Baker River tributary.

The Skagit is second only to the Columbia River as a producer of salmon.

Missile Ship Will Arrive Friday Morning

The Royal Navy's guided missile destroyer HMS Kent—first of its kind to visit B.C. waters—will arrive at HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, Friday at 9 a.m.

Visitors will be welcomed on board between 2 and 5 p.m. when the ship will hold open house.

A heavy schedule of events has been planned for the ship's 35 officers and 450 men during her five-day visit.

The following Wednesday, HMS Kent will leave here for Vancouver.

Arabs Consider Ousting Tunisia

CAIRO (Reuters) — Members where they attacked Bourguiba of the Arab League were reported considering expulsion of Tunisia today, following mob action and the recall of ambassadors over the issue of recognizing Israel.

President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia proposed last week that the Arab states end their long-declared policy of throwing Israel into the sea, and instead recognize Israel's borders as drawn by the United Nations.

In return he urged that Israel be required to give up territory to allow resettlement of Arab refugees who left the country during the battles to found it.

In fury at the suggestion of recognizing Israel, 3,000 demonstrators reported to be from Cairo University Wednesday set fire to the Tunisian ambassador's house in Cairo, badly damaging the interior and shattering every window.

Thousands of students and workers staged another demonstration today in Alexandria.

Emergency Call

IT IS EXCELLENT NEWS THAT Oak Bay and Central Saanich councils have voted support for the concept of a regional parks board to acquire property in the southern area of Vancouver Island, and that City council members show every intention of giving similar approval.

This is a great step forward in the effort to save for the public of today and of the future a number of choice park sites on the Saanich peninsula and elsewhere. Ten years ago there were thirty such sites available; today these have dwindled to a dozen as housing development uses up the land.

Yet few topics before the councils are more important than that of the preservation of parklands for the need is rapidly increasing as the available supply becomes less.

When the population of the Sooke-to-Sidney area has grown to its predicted size—a quarter of a million by 1981 and more to come—the available green recreation areas will be a prime necessity. It will be a shameful misuse of our present opportunities if we fail to make provision for that day by purchasing the choice sites now at hand.

Under the regional plan, the province would contribute $320,000 and a half-mill levy by the municipalities over a five-year period would raise the amount to $1 million. This would be used to purchase selected park areas on beaches, hilltops or other choice locations.

Word is now awaited from Saanich and Esquimalt as to whether they will take part—and the program must have the help of all if it is to succeed. The people are going to need these parks, but if the land is not acquired very soon it will be used for other purposes and be lost forever or regained only at a much greater cost.

In a very important sense, this is a crossroads for the Capital Region. It is a time to turn our backs on parochialism and see the need for co-operation in this great joint task. To the council members who have not yet taken a stand: Which will you wish to be remembered as—the man who helped to provide the parks, or the man who ignored the need and misread the whole trend of the times?

More Talk on Senate Reform

IN HIS JOINT CAREERS AS NDP member of the Commons and newspaper columnist, Mr. Douglas Fisher is not an exponent of the soft approach. He acted typically this week as he attacked the Canadian Senate and joined the general chorus for its reform.

Mr. Fisher may have been a little harsh on his fellow politicians when he described appointments to the upper chamber as rewards for party hacks and "bagmen" and argued that they were predisposed to protect the interests of the business community.

But if his terms were rough, he did express a broad Canadian consensus and a prevailing discontent with the manner in which members are chosen for what was intended to be a body of sober second thought.

Senate reform vies with the weather as a Canadian conversational subject—but discussions of either have no effect, regardless of which administration is in office.

Of course, the Senate contains some excellent men and women whose energies and talents are devoted to the principles that were indicated by the Fathers of Confederation when they called for the establishment of that body. And in recent years, some non-political appointments have been made. As a general rule, however, elevation to the Senate is regarded as a reward for past political services to the administration in power.

The current proposal to make retirement on approximately half salary compulsory at 75 for future appointees will appeal to many Canadians—as will the provision for voluntary retirement at that age by present senators. But this would have no effect on a major source of concern, the method by which senators are chosen.

On the latter point, Mr. Fisher can come to the discussion with clean hands. His party has never used the Senate as a comfortable resort for so-called "bagmen," party hacks and politicians "kicked upstairs." It has never done so for a very obvious reason.

Unidentified Phone Voices

WHEN AN "OPEN LINE" audience participant picks up a telephone, speaks "live" over the radio and in the process spills some profanity or violates accepted standards, other listeners respond with reactions ranging from shock to a titter.

This is admittedly an infrequent occurrence. But the fact that it can happen indicates the danger of permitting an unidentified person to broadcast without any degree of responsibility.

The insults and the improper phrases draw the gasps, but the risks of the open line do not end there. The opportunity exists not only to abuse use of the media, but, if the speaker is not identified, actually to break laws governing slander. In recent years, the open line may also catch a private citizen by surprise, lead him to offer unconsidered views and expose himself to ridicule and contempt.

These are problems apparently causing concern to the Board of Broadcast Governors now considering the advisability of imposing some restrictions on the unknown voice at the end of the telephone line. Restrictions would, of course, invite charges of interference with freedom of speech.

But the point has been made that a recording of the telephone conversation—at least the incoming calls—could permit quick editing of statements to avoid automatic and immediate broadcasting of offensive material—a process that could be completed with a delay of only a few seconds.

"Open line" operators might consider the proposal in the light of action to protect themselves. By adopting such a practice they could avoid the possibility of being continuously hampering the expression of opinion or statement of fact which an unidentified telephone voice might wish to present.

"That's nothing . . . You should have seen the big ones I let get away . . ."

THE OTTAWA BUDGET

By MAURICE WESTERN

Lavish Gifts Ingeniously Spread

MR. WALTER GORDON has based his third budget squarely on the conviction that the country will not look a gift horse in the mouth.

The gifts are suitably lavish and have been spread with remarkable ingenuity. Apart from the sweeping reductions in income tax, which benefit us all, Mr. Gordon offers bonuses or incentives to a variety of groups. Even the lobbyists will have cause to remember the budget with gratitude; a start has been made with an amendment permitting such taxpayers to deduct the costs of making representations to a government or municipality for the purpose of obtaining a license, franchise or trademark.

Western

Economic Mix

The economic principles of the budget are less clear but the mix includes a dash of economic nationalism (the provisions for protecting Canadian newspapers and periodicals—including the re-baptized Time and Reader's Digest—from foreign interlopers), state interventionism (the Canadian Development Corporation) and Mr. Gordon's version of Dr. Firestone's new economics.

With estimated expenditures (including supplementaries) up by $431 millions and estimated revenues, in the absence of tax changes, up by $389 millions, Mr. Gordon might have looked forward to a modest budgetary deficit of $125 million. In view of the scale of his error last year, he might indeed, have anticipated the first surplus since 1956-57. It will be recalled that in 1963 he considered it important to move towards a budget balance in conditions of high employment.

The minister has some apprehensions, however, about the second half of the fiscal year. In any case the prospect of budget balance is not one which he now cares to contemplate before unemployment has dropped to the magic overall figure of 3 per cent. Taking into account on the one side the need of accommodating the expected increase in the labor force; on the other the restraining influence of contributions to support the Canada Pension Plan and its Quebec counterpart, he feels that an approach to balance at this time would be inappropriate.

Bit Vague

He is a bit vague about it. "In determining the amount of the (tax) reduction, I have had to consider the condition of the budget and the economic consequences of the change. There is no precise mathematical formula that can be applied in our present situation. It must be a matter of judgment."

Dr. Firestone, however, favors deficits when the level of economic activity is below the potential of expansion sustainable without too much inflation. He places this potential at 7 per cent, including 2 per cent for price increases. As it happens, this is precisely what Mr. Gordon predicts for the coming year. Presumably, therefore, a deficit of $300 millions is, in his judgment, what is required to produce this desirable result.

An interesting sequence may be noted. Now that it has been decided that a 2 per cent increase per year in the price level is a realistic goal, the government makes its plans not on the basis of stable prices but of prices rising by the permissible amount. This, of course, leaves no margin for error which is none too reassuring in view of the constancy with which governments have been disappointed in their price hopes.

If this is intended to be an economic tax reduction is curious. In the interests of economic efficiency, there would have been a strong case for reducing corporation tax. Mr. Gordon gave two reasons for choice: the need of protecting provincial revenues and the fact that the Carter Royal Commission has yet to submit its report.

Mr. Gordon's reasoning is obscure in another respect. At the traditional post-budget press conference, he justified his past policies by pointing out that the rate of improvement in the Canadian economy last year was almost double that of the American. But Mr. Gordon last year resisted the pressure for tax cuts to which he has now acceded and in fact brought the budget practically into balance although this was not his intention. One cannot tell what will come of his intentions this year but he seems strangely determined to replace policies which, on his own showing, have worked very well by American-style policies which, also on his own showing, have worked only half as well.

In voicing a hopeful expectation that provincial governments will not move in to take advantage of Ottawa's generosity by raising their own income taxes, Mr. Gordon repeated a warning he has voiced on earlier occasions. "If we in Parliament are to manage the nation's economic affairs properly, we must be able and prepared to take action of this kind from time to time, both in putting taxes down and in putting them up when the occasion demands it. The larger the share of the provinces and municipalities in the total public revenues of the country, the larger must be the proportionate change in our own taxes necessary to achieve the objectives of fiscal management."

This, indeed, is plain from the present budget. It has taken a 2½ per cent reduction in the federal tax (except for higher incomes) to achieve a saving to the taxpayer of $170 millions for 1965-66 or $265 million for the full year.

Looking Back

From The Times of April 29, 1960.

Albuquerque, N.M.: News has arrived here that a prospector named George Ross was attacked by Zuni Indians and almost torn a hawk. He was on his way to Gallup when he stopped in the mountains to cook a meal. Some Indians arrived and one of them advanced with a tomahawk and struck him on the head. As he was falling he drew his revolver and fired. This frightened the Indians who ran away. After riding back to Gallup he was taken to hospital almost unconscious from a ghastly wound and is not expected to live.

Bosh!

Mr. Skelton, your Saturday art columnist, seems to feel that the Victoria Art Gallery leans too heavily towards Japanese and Chinese art.

The Gallery is using a little foresight collecting good art that will stand up to the test of time.

The results can be seen at the Victoria Art Gallery, masterpieces, fully recognized by true art lovers—but not yet accepted by the "faddists."—Robert Bruce, 1035 Talmie.

Facts for A Critic

In his last column Robin Skelton unburdened himself of some fairly sweeping complaints about the Art Gallery's exhibition and art purchasing policies. Considering the necessary complexity of such policies it is not surprising that he has jumped to several erroneous conclusions. It is just a pity that he committed these errors to print last Saturday without feeling it necessary to get the facts from the Gallery first.

Mr. Skelton, for example, accuses us of spending far too much money on Oriental art and far too little on living Canadians. Quite the reverse is true. In its 13 years of buying, the Gallery has had a total of $8,305 to use with a free hand; that is to say, money that has been given carte blanche and not for purchases in specific fields.

Of this sum it has spent $5,990 on living Canadians and only $750 on oriental art.

Having lived in Canada a relatively short time, Mr. Skelton can hardly be expected to have a grasp of the policies of other Canadian galleries or a knowledge of their collections. When he has had a chance to acquire this information his views about the situation here will doubtless change.

Mr. Skelton considers our Canadian collection inadequate and, little though we like it, this is obviously true. But does he realize that it is as good as, or better than, those of other Canadian civic galleries our size, with the exception of London which enjoys large uncommitted purchase funds?

He seems to feel we fail to support our top local artists. The fact is that we probably lead Canada in this field. At the very least, in the number of one-man shows we accord them, we share the honors with Regina and Montreal. Some people accuse us of subjecting them to over-exposure. Until Victoria has a good commercial gallery we shall continue to support them beyond the national norm.

Nor do we neglect the Vancouver scene as he seems to imagine. Had he been with us these last eight years he would have enjoyed, in addition to group and "new talent" shows, one-man exhibitions of all their best artists—Jack Shadbolt, Gordon Smith, Roy Kiyooka, John Kerner, Takao Tanabe, Donald Jarvis, Molly and Bruno Bobak, Bill Mayrs, Alistair Bell, Ann Kipling, and so on. If we have rather, so-called Vancouver in the last couple of years it is because that city until recently has been in the artistic doldrums.

Far from ignoring the splendid artists to the south of us in Washington and Oregon, we lead Canada in this field too. We are the only Canadian gallery to have given these artists one-man shows—as witness our Mark Tobey, Morris Graves, Philip McCracken and Pehr exhibitions. We are the only Canadian gallery that owns a collection of U.S. northwest art.

So warmly do our friends to the south feel about our championship of their art that some have become our patrons (again, witness Mark Tobey), while two have recently offered to bequeath us their important northwest collections.

When it comes to exhibiting contemporary Canadian and international art we have the same exhibitions that other Canadian middle-size galleries have, and we organize a few they don't get. We happen to share Mr. Skelton's dissatisfaction with many of these circuit shows, and we flatter ourselves that with three times our present staff and budget we could organize better shows ourselves.

What Mr. Skelton seems to be asking us to do, without quite realising the fact is to serve up a $60,000 program on our $31,000 budget. I shall be very happy at any time to explain to him the economics of exhibitions.

Mr. Skelton also complains that we are becoming an art museum. This is precisely the case, and we shall defend that policy any day. It also happens to be the policy of the great majority of the successful North American galleries. As to the museum items in the Pollard collection to which he takes exception, he will find the exact counterparts of most of them in the Seattle Art Museum and all other large public collections of oriental art.

Finally, Mr. Skelton should remember that a civic gallery has obligations to the broad community it serves as well as to its artists. That the general Victoria community does not share his dissatisfaction with our policies may be suggested by the fact that our 1,550 members represent the highest per capita ratio of any city in Canada.—Colin Graham, Director, The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Why the Ice Is Thin Despite U.S. Viet Nam Opinion Polls

By WALTER LIPPMANN from Washington

Lippmann

IN MY experience the President has never deluded himself by indulging in any wishful thinking about how the war is going in Viet Nam or how the American people are feeling about it. When he tells his visitors that "the ice is very thin," although the polls show that he has overwhelming popular support, the skepticism does not arise because he has a silly yearning to have everybody agree with him. The President's skepticism arises because he is wise in the ways of politics. Once the shooting starts, any and every President can count on a big majority. "My country, right or wrong."

What matters to the President is the indisputable fact that in the big majority who support him in the polls today, there is deep doubt and anxiety about the course we are taking. This is why he knows that the ice is very thin.

The popular doubt and anxiety have evoked a great debate which ought not to be vulgarized and degraded by the use of epithets like dove and hawk. This debate cannot be suspended while American policy is, as it is today, still unsettled and in the making. The debate on Viet Nam has already brought about a very considerable improvement in our policy.

When the debate began, Dean Rusk was saying that the United States was at war with the North Vietnamese must "stop doing what they are doing," without specifying exactly what they must do or not do and what we would regard as sufficient proof they had done it. This was a demand for unconditional surrender, and it was far away from the President's Baltimore speech which offered, for the first time, "unconditional discussions."

We have come a long way from the position of three months ago when we said that we did not think there was anything to negotiate about. For now the avowed purpose of our policy is to induce Hanoi to negotiate.

The debate, therefore, has not been in vain, and it must continue in order to clarify our thinking about where and when and how we want to bring about a cease-fire and what, in the ensuing negotiations, we hope to achieve in Indo-China. We are still far from such a clarification, even among the small circle of the President's principal advisers, and obviously the country as a whole is groping for information and for enlightenment.

As part of that debate I should like to say something about a powerful and moving leading editorial in the Washington Post on Monday. It is called "Anguish of Power." Its theme is that once a nation has achieved great power, such as Great Britain did in the 19th century and as the United States has now, it "must live in anguish." For "no country can have great power and a quiet conscience."

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown: no doubt it is true that "great power and a quiet conscience" do not easily or for long go together. Where I differ from the Washington Post is not about that. We cannot, and we should not if we could, return to the isolation which we practised before the two world wars and imagine that we are returning to the age of our innocence. My thesis is that we must not make the mistake of jumping from isolationism to globalism and that this is what the Washington Post is in fact saying we need to do.

It is true that "this country cannot admit disinterest in any crisis." But what this country must learn to do is to measure how much it can afford to intervene in "any crisis" and to distinguish between crises which affect its vital interests and those which do not.

Great Britain in the 19th century did not regard it as a duty to intervene when a fire broke out—as for example in our Civil War, in the Franco-Prussian War, in the Balkan Wars, in the Russo-Japanese War. What I reject is the idea that because the United States must take an interest when there is any breach of the peace, it must therefore be the global policeman or, as the Washington Post puts it, the global "fire department."

A mature great power will make measured and limited use of its power. It will eschew the theory of a global and universal duty which not only commits it to unending wars of intervention, but intoxicates its thinking with the illusion that it is a crusader for righteousness that each war is a war to end all wars.

Since in this generation we have become a great power, I am in favor of learning to behave like a great power, of getting rid of globalism which would not only entangle us everywhere, but is based on the totally vain notion that if we do not set the world in order, no matter what the price, we cannot live in the world safely.

If we examine this idea thoroughly, we shall see that it is nothing but the old isolationism of our innocence in a new form. Then we thought we had to preserve our purity by withdrawal from the ugliness of great-power politics. Now we sometimes talk as if we could preserve our purity only by policing the globe. But in the real world we shall have to learn to live as a great power which defends itself and makes its way among other great powers.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

Delicate Task for George Hees

The task which George Hees seems to have set on himself is the most difficult and delicate I can remember in Canadian federal politics.

Dozens of Canadians have wanted to lead a Canadian political party since parties emerged as the main engines of the governing machinery over a century ago. Many of the aspirants never had a chance. Most of them never revealed their ambitions or took them to a convention. Most who did have lost out.

Apparently, Mr. Hees decided to fly a kite about his candidacy for the succession to John Diefenbaker. The reason is obvious: with Davie Fulton in the field, the honor might go by default to him if other prospects should not be put before Conservatives.

To understand the difficulties ahead for Mr. Hees, one has only to read the following words from Heath MacQuarrie's recent book, The Conservative Party. MacQuarrie is an MP professor, a careful man, less than lukewarm about Mr. Diefenbaker, and a Maritime traditionalist rather than a Bay-Street-hating "cow-boy."

He wrote, about the February cabinet crisis of 1963:

"The minister of national defence, Douglas Harkness, had resigned on Feb. 3 in disagreement with the prime minister on the question of nuclear arms. Harkness believed that nuclear warheads should be supplied to the four weapons systems adopted to their use. Believing that his and the prime minister's views were incapable of reconciliation, Harkness left the ministry. A few days later, Pierre Sevigny, declaring that he shared Harkness' view, left the cabinet also."

"On the same day there was an even more spectacular departure. The popular George Hees, colorful and effective minister of trade and commerce, one-time national president of the party and long-time friend of Mr. Diefenbaker, resigned his cabinet post and announced that he would not be a candidate in the election."

"Mr. Hees, as caucus chairman, had on Feb. 7 presided over an all-day meeting of Conservative MPs discussing strategy for the upcoming election, and his sudden decision to leave on the eve of battle was received with bitter anger by Conservatives all across the country."

"Many recalled the fate of H. H. Stevens, another trade and commerce minister, who had broken with the party leadership in 1936. But, unlike Stevens, Hees did not campaign against his former colleagues. Although a few prominent Conservatives publicly expressed disaffection with the national leader, the party organization in all constituencies rallied to the support of the government."

Has the "bitter anger" at Mr. Hees disappeared? From a position outside active politics as an elected politician, can Mr. Hees develop a large voting support among potential Tory convention delegates? My opinion is that the answers to those questions must be negative. In fact, I would predict that Mr. Hees would have a tough time being heard at any Tory convention, if it should come before an electoral disaster has wiped out the bulk of the present contingent MPs.

I have heard it so often from Conservative MPs from the west that the resignation of George Hees was the worst of all stabs in the back. Many of them believe that Pearson would never have taken more seats than Diefenbaker in '63 if Hees had fought with them.

If it appeared that George Hees stood a chance of carrying a Tory convention, I am certain that Alvin Hamilton, the former minister of agriculture, would throw his hat in the ring, just to face him squarely with his defection. The Conservatives have some 90 MPs, most of whom can turn to Davie Fulton without qualms of conscience. Fulton has played it straight about the party leadership in that his retreat into the wilderness was direct and before the deluge of '63.

Therefore, the best chance Mr. Hees would seem to have is an election this year, a much-reduced Tory contingent in Parliament, especially from the Prairies. The balance of Tory power would swing back somewhat to the east and there would be a clearer realization that Mr. Hees' talents were suited to a long comeback fight.

Meanwhile, Mr. Fulton should continue to have the edge in gaining strength for the leadership bid, particularly since he can really count on getting back into Parliament at the next election. There doesn't seem to be a possible seat open and easy for Mr. Hees.

The daring, bold thing that Mr. Hees could do would be to marshal an open demand for a leadership convention, including a chapter-and-verse indictment of Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership. He could do it, but it would be most risky with John Diefenbaker, alive and capable of using his sharp weapon of ridicule. Mr. Hees has himself nicely in the public eye as head of the Montreal Stock Exchange, but that's no place from which to lead a fighting, political insurrection.

Quebec Liberals Battle for Power As Sauve Challenges 'Old Guard'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

A power struggle of epic proportions is about to erupt inside the Quebec wing of the federal Liberal Party.

Its ultimate outcome could be the dethronement of Guy Favreau, the Pearson administration's star-crossed minister of justice and chief Quebec lieutenant.

But it turns on much more fundamental issues than personalities.

GUY FAVREAU

What is involved here is a final confrontation between the old and new guards of French-Canadian Liberalism and the determination of one stubborn, impatient politician to exercise all traces of shady influence from the backrooms of his party.

That man is Maurice Sauve, the Liberal government's 42-year-old minister of forestry. He's gambling his promising political career on the challenge he has issued to the entrenched reactionary elements of the Quebec Liberal Party.

Specifically, what Sauve wants is that his party—which is still operating much as it did a decade ago, before the Quebec revolution—be turned into a truly democratic movement with constituency associations in full control of nominating candidates. He's also demanding a reform of the party's financial structure including the removal of Senator Louis Gelin as chief fund raiser.

These steps would in effect destroy the Quebec Liberal machine and leave Sauve as the natural inheritor of Liberal power in his province.

Ever since he entered federal politics in the 1962 election, Sauve has stood out as an impatient and controversial exception among the status-quo Liberals from Quebec.

His supporters regard him as a rare kind of politician, he's both an idealist and a man of action, a combination of qualities that one may rarely possess in the right place at the right time. They admire the tough realism of his political style and claim that he alone of Pearson's ministers accurately reflects the aspirations of the post-war generation in both French and English Canada.

Because of his record and personality, Sauve has become a symbol to the progressive elements inside the Quebec Liberal Party.

They feel that in his victory lies their best hope of mod-ernizing and democratizing Quebec Liberalism. They see in the possibility of his failure the end of their own national political ambitions and if Maurice with his drive and imagination can't bring about reform in our party, says one young Quebec Liberal, then none of us will have any reason to believe we can go to Ottawa and have a voice in the party.

At the same time, Sauve's many enemies resent his impatient yearning for reform, which they interpret as unrelenting personal ambition.

This fear of Sauve is well

... tough fighter

founded since he was the only French-speaking minister from Quebec completely untouched by the recent scandalous allegations and any reform of the Quebec Liberal Party is bound to advance his position.

In a town where discretion is the cardinal virtue, Sauve has made little attempt to hide his disgust for the kind of politician produced by the Quebec Liberal machine.

Fight Uneven

But this challenge of that machine is an uneven contest. While he is concerned with such intangible concepts as the democratization and modernization of a political movement, his opponents are well aware that the fight really concerns their professional existence. If Sauve wins, their political careers will come to an abrupt end. To protect themselves, they have decided to support Guy Favreau and Maurice Lamontagne, Pearson's senior Quebec ministers, who take a much less drastic view of political reform.

Sauve thus finds himself going into battle isolated from the majority of his colleagues. But he's a tough campaigner. When Jean Lesage named him public relations director of the provincial Liberal Party late in 1959 Sauve called in the staff he'd inherited from his old guard predecessor and fired them on the spot. His speech of dismissal ended with this unceremonious farewell: "Don't bother to turn in your keys. I'm having all the locks changed."

Broke Pact

Much of the hostility toward Sauve dates back to his involvement in the vicious Lesage campaign of 1960 when he tried to introduce a measure of democracy in Liberal riding associations. Old guard Liberal MPs such as Lionel Chevrier, Yvon Dupuis, Azelus Denis, Guy Rouleau and Alexis Caron had for years engineered their victories through discreet non-aggression pacts with the Union Nationale political machine, gaining its support during federal campaigns in return for lending only passive sponsorship to Liberal candidates during provincial contests. Sauve set out to upset this cosy arrangement.

As a result, when the Pearson government was formed in 1963, Chevrier and Denis unequivocally refused to serve in the same cabinet with Sauve and it was not until Pearson moved them out (Chevrier to London and Denis to the Senate) that he was given a portfolio. Although Sauve played a big role in establishing the informal contact between Ottawa and Quebec City—which saved the Canada Pension Plan last year, Pearson has since then rarely sought Sauve's advice on Quebec problems, preferring to rely instead of his old friend Maurice Lamontagne.

... chief fund raiser

Early this spring, when Sauve faced the realization that neither Pearson nor Lamontagne and Favreau intended to sponsor any dramatic reform of the Quebec Liberal Party—despite the scandalous allegations in which it was embroiled—he began to withdraw from the Ottawa political scene. He cut himself off from his friends and brooded, no longer finding any inspiration or joy in politics. Finally he left for a 24-day tour of Europe to contemplate his future. Before he left he had been offered two lucrative industrial positions in Quebec, one of which would have more than doubled his cabinet salary.

All Or Nothing

But by the time he returned to Canada last Saturday Maurice Sauve had made up his mind he would stay in the government and root out the old guard or sacrifice his career in the process.

Right now only this much is clear about the eventual outcome of the struggle for power inside the Quebec Liberal Party: There is a great deal more at stake than the political future of Maurice Sauve.

NATURE on the ISLAND

By Cliff Carl

Most animals swallow nothing but plant and animal materials which are used directly as food, but some, including mountain sheep, goats and bears, consume earth and other non-living substances for the mineral matter they contain. Many species of birds, however, regularly eat sand, gravel and even stones of considerable size as part of their every-day diet. However, these materials are consumed not as food but as tools for grinding up food—a most ingenious plan on the part of nature.

Birds which follow the habit are largely seed-eaters, and the hard materials help grind up the food while it is still in the gizzard. This muscular organ provides the necessary movement, while the grit provides the equally necessary crushing surfaces. Presumably the stony substances slowly wear away or perhaps they are passed gradually into the intestine along with the food, because from time to time the bird must replenish the supply by picking up fresh grit from the ground.

A number of questions come to mind. What stops all grit from passing out of the gizzard at one time? There seems to be some device at work to prevent this as some stony material seems to be present at all times. How does the bird know when to swallow more grit? Again there must be some method of informing the bird of the periodic need; it does not seem to be continuous. Research in these fields would be very rewarding.

The need for grit is a very real one. When it is unavailable seed-eating birds apparently have trouble assimilating their food. Some years ago coots wintering on Beaver Lake were driven to search for grit along the Patricia Bay Highway when the usual source along the shore was cut off by snow and ice. Several died through malnutrition before the reason was discovered and some probably were killed by traffic.

Some birds and mammals swallow quite large pebbles or even stones, but the reasons for doing so are not clear. Penguins, fur seals and sea-lions are prime examples. Some persons claim the stones act as ballast, making it easier for these animals to dive and to remain underwater, but a more plausible explanation in the case of the mammals is that the stones act as a kind of "gastric chewing gum" during the period when they do not feed. Ordinarily male fur seals and sea-lions do not eat while on the breeding grounds, but almost always their stomachs are found to contain several pounds of stones. Perhaps they serve to keep the stomach muscles in condition during the lengthy fast.

In the past various reptiles apparently also habitually swallowed stones. One group, the plesiosaurs, existed in great numbers in the shallow seas of 200 million years ago. Though porpoise-like in general shape, they were typical reptiles in all other respects, yet their fossilized remains often contain a handful of smoothed and polished stones within the rib cage. Such pebbles, apparently worn by the grinding action within the gizzard, are known as "gastroliths," a name which is simply translated as "stomach stones." Why these animals required a gastric mill while modern reptiles get along without it is a mystery.

Send questions in natural history to Dr. Cliff Carl, care of The Victoria Daily Times.

The issue of electoral expenses has been exercising many European democracies, and a definite trend has appeared—notably in France and Germany—which postulates that such expenses should be charged to the public purse.

In France since 1921, the distribution of circulars and ballot papers has become an official function carried out by the president of the law courts. The government also refunds to candidates the cost of paper used for electoral propaganda and all printing charges. Until recently, the state paid for gasoline used by candidates in canvassing, but this has been discontinued under the new regime which has considerably reduced the size of individual constituencies.

Candidates are entitled to the refund of their expenses only if they polled at least five per cent of the total vote in their constituencies. This, as well as a deposit of about $200 for each candidate, refunded to those who poll at least five per cent of the vote, keeps out what has been referred to as the lunatic fringe.

All propaganda circulars—two for each elector—are distributed on behalf of the candidates and their parties by a commission presided over by the president of the law court and consisting of government officials, with representatives of candidates and parties present only as non-voting members. The state looks after the equal distribution of all propaganda material and defrays the cost of postage—a substantial item in the electoral expenses of individual candidates.

Free Time

All parties get free time on the government-controlled radio and television (one broadcast of 10 minutes and two of five minutes each during the last election). To ensure absolute equality, the date and hour of transmission are decided by lot.

In Germany there is no limitation on the expenditure by individual candidates, nor is there any control over donations to political parties. Such donations were at one time tax-deductible, but this practice was declared illegal by the German supreme court.

A draft bill that would regulate political parties in West Germany, submitted by the Social Democratic opposition and now on the Bundestag order paper, provides for a detailed itemization of all incomes of each party. The

Blasphemy Trial Rocks Finland

HELSINKI—Trial for blasphemy is a rare event, and the appearance of one in Finland has understandably been a sensation. It concerns Midsummer's Dance, a novel by a young Finnish author, Mr. Hanna Salama. With its publisher, he is now being tried before the Helsinki High Court. It is a protracted case, with many adjournments and celebrated witnesses.

Midsummer's Dance is a study of a juvenile sex and alcohol orgy. It takes its title from the setting of Midsummer's Eve, which is the principal holiday in the Scandinavian calendar, and the nearest thing to a saturnalia extant in Europe. The book ends with a motor accident, and is designed to show the futility of everything.

The passages which led to the prosecution are in a scene where an intoxicated bus driver rails against all sacred things and strews obscenity on a selection of Christian beliefs.

"My intention was to wound and insult my fellow-citizens' religious feelings," wrote Salama in a letter to the court. "One of my motives was blasphemy; another, to insult and denigrate church and clergy, to cast doubt on all the so-called Christian values, and weaken as far as possible the influence of the church and Christianity."

This letter has been the choice morsel of the case so far. It was read out at the last hearing, at which Salama was not present. He had vanished for the day. The case was adjourned and Salama fined 300 marks ($100) for contempt of court. The judge said that next time he was to be fetched by a policeman.

Defence Ruined

"I just don't know what happens next," was the comment of Salama's lawyer, Mr. Kullervo Kemppinen, "our whole defence is destroyed. Salama must have been deranged when he wrote that letter."

Until he did so his case seemed strong. It rested on the argument that the offending passages were not blasphemous in intent, but necessary ingredients of an artistic effect.

It had the support of several eminent men of letters. Vaino Linna, the author of Unknown Soldier and the historical novelist Mika Waltari are to give evidence in his defence, and have already entered statements in court.

Salama regards himself a martyr to religious persecution. The clause of the Finnish Constitution which makes blasphemy a criminal offence was last invoked thirty years ago, and its present application has aroused much public controversy.

Many people say that religious feelings of a citizen must be protected by law, and that blasphemy therefore cannot be tolerated, even in the interests of literary effect. Writers, journalists, and a number of politicians, however, see in it a threat to freedom of speech. A large section of public opinion find the case faintly ridiculous, and many clergymen are against prosecution on the grounds that any trial must be meaningless, since Salama's stature, they say, is so tiny that no deity could possibly bother to notice him, let alone take offence.

Salama does represent a current of thought prevalent among the young Finnish intellectuals. It is one of nihilism and dark pessimism. "Existence is a heap of dung," commented Salama in an interview, "and people ought to realize the fact."

Dupuis Offered Right to Search

Chance to Seek Alleged Receiver Of Mysterious Package Granted

By RUSSEL PEDEN

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP) Yvon Dupuis, former federal cabinet minister, has been offered an opportunity to search the Quebec revenue department for an employee who is alleged to have received from him a package which "certainly felt like money."

The offer was made by Eric Kierans, Quebec revenue minister, who testified Wednesday at Mr. Dupuis' preliminary hearing on influence peddling charges.

Mr. Dupuis, 38, is charged with having asked for and received $10,000 in 1961 to help obtain a Quebec race-track charter. Mr. Dupuis is charged with having passed it on to an unidentified member of the revenue department in a hotel corridor.

Mr. Kierans said the Liberal MP told him last year of having received a package that "felt like money" from Mr. Deslauriers and of having passed it on to an unidentified member of the revenue department in a hotel corridor.

Mr. Dupuis had wanted to go through the revenue department to see whether he could identify the man, but Mr. Kierans said he refused permission to do this.

"Put yourself in my position," he told the court. "Here is a case where a man admitted receiving a package of money, for the purpose of bribing an officer of my department, which he passed to an unknown man in a hotel corridor."

Mr. Kierans said he did not believe the story, and also felt it would be bad for department morale to have Mr. Dupuis at nearby St. Luc.

U.K. Teacher Arrested By Russians

MOSCOW (UPI) — A British teacher on a tour of Russia has been arrested by Communist authorities, the British Embassy in Moscow announced today. Informants said the teacher was accused of "anti-Soviet activities."

A spokesman for the embassy identified the Briton as Gerald Brooke, 26, and said he has been detained on "criminal charges."

The sources said that Brooke, who was picked up last Sunday, was believed to have distributed literature, the government considers anti-Soviet.

Brooke's wife, Barbara, also was detained by Soviet authorities for a brief period. But she was released and informed the embassy of her husband's plight on Monday.

Under cross-examination, Mr. Kierans said it takes about two years to acquire a race-track charter through regular government channels, and anyone seeking a short cut through bribing revenue department employees would be "wasting his money."

We are charged with the administration of race-tracks and not with the policy of permitting them to be built. The revenue minister occupied the witness box for the entire day as the hearing resumed after a two-week adjournment.

Mr. Dupuis, who resigned as federal minister without portfolio in January at Prime Minister Pearson's request, still represents St. Jean-Ildefonse-Naperville in the Commons.

The proposed race-track was to have been built in his riding of St. Luc.

'TAKE OFF SPEED LIMITS'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alberta Highway Minister Gordon Taylor says speed limits should be removed from highways.

He said at a press conference Wednesday he believes motorists are capable of setting their own speed limits according to road conditions, the condition of their cars, and their own capability.

In Canada we are approaching the day when there will be no speed limit, although it is a few years away yet," he said.

The Alberta cabinet minister said studies in Denmark, which has had no speed limits for the past four or five years, have shown there were fewer accidents after limit removal than before.

But those that did take place at 100 or 120 miles an hour were more serious, he said.

BROTHER GETS LEAVE FROM PRISON TO ATTEND FUNERAL

CPR Policeman Loaned Hogue Death Gun

VANCOUVER (CP) — Funeral services were held Wednesday for Vancouver's only policeman killed in the line of duty, Leonard Hogue, his wife and six children as the investigation continued into the officer's knowledge of a $125,000 mutilated currency holdup of a railway warehouse here in February.

In another development, a Canadian Pacific Railway official confirmed the gun Hogue used on his wife and six children had been borrowed from a Canadian Pacific constable, the constable drank beer with the railway policeman, a friend of several months, at a Vancouver hotel on the evening of April 19, for an internal dispute, reported to Vancouver police the day after the Hogue shooting. He told police he had loaned his pistol to Hogue.

A few hours later Hogue went home, shot his wife and six children, then committed suicide. He had been under investigation in connection with the $125,000 mutilated currency robbery at Canadian Pacific merchandise services depot in Vancouver. Superintendent Troit said the

Naggers With 100 Causes

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

They look as unlike detectives as Margaret Rutherford.

But detectives they are, of every shape, age and size.

Professional naggers with a hundred causes, the bane of the shady quick-buck manufacturer, the ladies of the Consumers Association of Canada, are in town.

Talk to a manufacturer or certain retailers and they will tell you that the CAC is merely an organized group of busy-bodies with nothing better to do.

Talk to the average housewife and she won't know who or what the association means or what it is trying to do.

I'll tell you, and, being the soul of politeness, ladies first. Ever buy one of those bottles of nail varnish with the brush attached to the cap? Ever notice how with at least a couple of brands the brush only reaches half-way down the bottle? And that meant muffled curses the night you were getting set for the big social evening and . . . but you know better than I do.

The ladies of the Consumer Association are working on the problem right now. The betting is that in double quick time they'll have those brushes scraping the bottom of the bottle for being ladies, manufacturers find them chronic complainers until wrongs are put right.

They are also working on a well known toothpaste manufacturer, a famous name in the toothy smile league.

WEIGHT DIFFERENCE

Only a woman would notice that when the boys back east slap a "one-third off" label on a product there's a difference in the content weight.

Compare the bargain with the regular pack and you'll find the weight on one in ounces, on the other in grams.

Says the Consumers Association:

"Deceitful advertising. The company should be ashamed, the practice must stop. Do they really expect a housewife to stand there and figure out the difference between grams and ounces?"

The answer is "no," the producer doesn't. He just hopes that nobody will notice his little juggle of the contents to slice an extra cent off the top.

But it's easier to scramble over the Berlin wall than avoid the eagle eyes of Canada's snippety-snoopers.

They check the eyes of teddy bears to make sure they don't come out and choke unsuspecting tots. They watch the flaky wax in fresh milk cartons and want to know what dairymen are doing to stop it. (They're trying newer and better quality cartons and hope to have the problem beat soon.)

And they're bombarding the manufacturer of a well known line of ladies slacks with complaints because the material deteriorates quickly and the seams come apart after the first wash.

They have not as yet, not to my knowledge anyway, tackled the far more important problem of why the buttons always fall off my new suits (a rare purchase I admit) before it's worn a third week.

Having watched the private eyes of the Canadian consumer in action these past two days, I'm sure they'll get around to it one day.

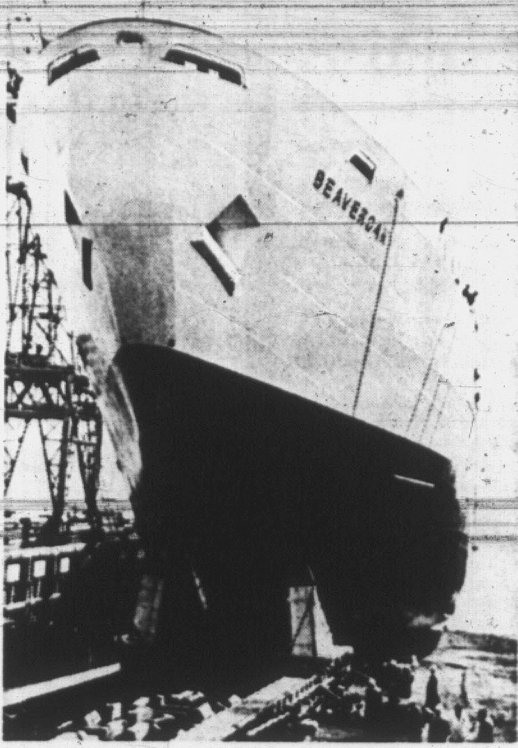

In the meantime all manufacturers will do well to stay alert and keep their products up to reasonable standards. For a while the shoddy goods are going to stop it. (They're trying newer and better quality cartons and hope to have the problem beat soon.)

The eyes of big sister are on you and those eyes are sharp, the tongue well barbed.

Bought From Client

TORONTO (CP) — Partners T. A. Richardson, told the royal commission investigating trade-in in windfall that brokerage brokers bought 25,000 shares of employees should not have bought stock from Mrs. MacMillan, a client.

The employees' orders "just got in with the rest of the flood of orders," Mr. Hunter said. "It was an error . . . I can't explain it."

BIGGEST IN U.S. HISTORY

GM Earnings $636 Million

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. Wednesday reported the biggest first-quarter earnings in history: $636,000,000, equal to $22.22 a share.

GM's earnings for the first three months of 1965 shattered its previous corporate and U.S. industry high of $536,000,000 and $1.87 a share set in the first quarter last year.

General Motors thus became the third of the big three auto makers to report business at a new high in the first quarter this year. Ford earned $200,800,000 and Chrysler $56,600,000 in the same three months.

American Motors, whose auto sales have trailed its 1964 pace, is to make its first quarter financial report early next week.

GM's earnings contrasted with $385,800,000 earned by another industrial giant, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., in the same three months ended Feb. 29, 1965.

Chairman Frederic G. Donner and President John F. Gordon announced that GM set quarterly records in sales, earnings, world-wide employment and payrolls in the first three months of 1965.

Dollar sales were $5,558,000,000, 16 per cent ahead of the like period last year.

World-wide employment averaged 737,963 workers with payrolls of $1,375,000,000 in the first quarter. This compared with 683,680 and $1,175,000,000 in the comparable period last year.

MacPowell Approves Quarterly Dividend

VANCOUVER (CP) — Directors of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited have approved payment of a quarterly dividend of 25 cents an ordinary share.

The dividend is payable June 15 to shareholders on record May 17, a company spokesman announced.

J. V. Clyne, chairman of the giant B.C. forests products company, reported to shareholders Monday first quarter profits had declined despite an increase in total sales.

The quarterly profit dropped to $9,678,615 on sales of $101,861 compared with a profit of $10,981,874 and sales of $96,231,994 in the first quarter of 1964.

Mr. Clyne blamed severe winter weather and additional operating costs for the decrease.

Italian Firm Wins Damsite Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Italian firm has been awarded a $4,887,525 contract to build a watertight concrete wall along a cofferdam at one of three Columbia River damsites in B.C., it has been announced.

Icanda Ltd. was one of only two bidders on the project. Sole-tanche and Rodin Ltd., a French company, submitted a bid of $4,995,033.

The two-foot-thick concrete will extend 2,700 feet along the horseshoe-shaped cofferdam at the Arrow damsite, said B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Step up, you hungry subscribers, up closer so those in the rear can hear, and listen to the good news provided by your ever-loving afternoon newspaper.

Today, as in yesteryear, H. Malone's Casual Choices will run down the Kentucky Derby for you. This is the Derby that will be run at Churchill Downs Saturday. Don't ask how we can tell you what's going to happen in a race that is 48 hours away. You're only paying a dime, Clyde.

... 'red for guts'

"It's later than he thinks," noted the B.C. Hospital Orderlies' Digest.

A month ago, any analysis of the Derby would have been out of the question. There were still some 60 noble beasts interested and I have enough trouble figuring out what six are going to do let alone an entire caucus.

Some Wouldn't Even Run for Lunch

Experience and injuries have caused the attrition. No more than a dozen will likely start. Of these a handful ought to be doing something useful, like hauling milk or plowing the back 40. They are nice horses with pea-size hearts, suffering from the most common thoroughbred affliction, the slows.

In the rear echelon, out for a Saturday afternoon stroll, will be One Afternoon, At First Blush and Leonine. Splendid foursome. If somebody gave them cards they could play bridge or hearts for money. They lack the gaudy credentials for picking up Derby dough.

The rest of the field has been divided into three groups, identified as (a) "prayer" (b) "perhaps" and (c) "positively" sort of.

Carpenter's Rule, Mr. Pak and Swift Ruler are the horses that are going to have to get down on their knees. At Santa Anita it seemed as if Carpenter's Rule ran every other day. And every time he ran he lugged (leaned in) or savaged (took a nip of) another horse or committed some other kooky act. But he can go a little.

Swift Ruler captured the Arkansas Derby and if you like to stick your neck in a longshot's noose, be our guest.

If They Let Flag Raiser Go Alone...

Three aristocrats (there are no bourgeois-bred types in this 91st edition of the Darby) are cut to fit the "perhaps" category.

Two of them wait until your heart is falling through your stomach before they unburden themselves. Flag Raiser is no such horse.

He has seized three substantial pots, at seven furlongs, a mile and 1 1/2 miles by coming out of the gate with both feet on the accelerator.

In the Wood Memorial, Bobby Ussery took him out ahead of everything and he looked like Kelo. If anything had run with Flag Raiser there is always the possibility that he would look like Yesterday's Spaghetti.

Hail to All missed Flag Raiser by a neck in the Wood, coming from next to last. He might appreciate the extra eighth of a mile in the Derby but those horses who make their charge late have a terrible effect on the blood pressure. They can encounter more perils than Little Orphan Annie. With an open road, well...

Many experts are knocking Native Charger. They say he "just won" the Flamingo and Florida Derby, both in cockroach times. His time of arrival seems hardly relevant beside his accomplishment. He won when he had to.

I would be more afraid of him if he whacked better horses in the teeth but the fact is that the good ones weren't racing in Florida at that time.

A Prophet Has To Be a Bold Lad, Wot?

Somebody has to run third on Saturday. What price Tom Rolfe? He is the smallest (945 pounds), one of the best bred (Ribot) and he has won his last two excursions. He will be ridden by Canada's Ron Turcotte, considered one of the 10 best in America.

Lucky Debonair will finish second because he will have nothing else to do. He looked yeasty in taking the Santa Anita Derby and much flatter in losing the Forerunner to a beagle called Bugle. That may not have been all his fault. They say Shoemaker took him everywhere but up to the ladies' room.

While all the promising youngsters were out trying to build up reputations last winter, Bold Lad stood in his stall. He popped a splint (you get much the same thing by banging a shin) and Bill Winfrey halted his work. Since then he has had two preps, finishing third and first.

There is one other reason to be fond of him. He will be ridden by William Hartack, the abrasive genius, five times a winner in seven Derby appearances.

Only Eddie Arcaro struck Derby gold five times but he had 21 shots at it. Having Hartack aboard does not seriously affect Bold Lad's chances.

As Arcaro once said: "If jockeys had colors, Hartack's would be red for guts and green for money."

BODEN, MacLEOD CLASH...

Who Will Be Fourth Two-Time Champ?

There's only one definite prediction to be made regarding Sunday's Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship final.

The winner of the 36-hole playoff between Norm Boden and Ron MacLeod will become the fourth two-time champion in the history of popular match play tournament.

Boden, the Mt. Brenton professional, and MacLeod, head golf man at Jasper Park Lodge, both are previous winners. Boden triumphed in 1961—the last time the tournament finished at Uplands—and Mac-Leod came along to win it all the following year.

Laurie Carroll, Bill Wakeham and Eric Hibberson are the other two-time winners on record.

The difference between winning and losing Sunday will mean $50. MacLeod, who also has a share of the medallist's prize, will get $160 if he wins, $110 if he loses.

Boden could win $125 or settle for $75 as runnerup.

In addition, the winner receives the distinctive Times Open blazer. An exclusive creation of clothier George

The Canadian Football League may have to take a long, hard look at its American import rule following a report by a University of Toronto law professor on the issue.

Prof. Bora Laskin advised the CFL its restriction on American players "probably violates" the Ontario Human Rights Code and may be a violation of rights legislation in the province since football import quotas went into effect in 1946.

In Calgary, CFL president Pat Mahoney expressed confidence the CFL can rephrase its constitution limiting teams to 14 imports to comply with fair employment legislation.

MEET SOON:

Mahoney also said CFL commissioner Sydney Halter would meet with Ontario government officials in Toronto within a week.

But CFL officials apparently have their signals crossed.

Halter, in Winnipeg, said he had no plans to go to Toronto and he disagreed with Mahoney's interpretation of the report. He would not comment other than to say it is confidential and "will be discussed by the league."

CHANGE RULE

Mahoney is confident the CFL can rephrase the import rule so that it would comply with the law. It could be based, he said, on where players receive their football training and also on their place of residence—rather than on a national basis.

Prof. Laskin's 14-page report was the result of a CFL request last month for his legal opinion on the league's new naturalization ruling which limits each of the nine CFL teams to three naturalized Canadians.

Mahoney said the report apparently found the ruling illegal and went on to question the entire quota system as a violation of the Human Rights Code in Ontario.

The code, enacted three years ago, is a compilation of various rights legislation in the province and includes the 1951 Fair Employment Practices Act which outlawed discrimination based on nationality.

The CFL president warned that if import restrictions are lifted, only the richer teams in the country—such as British Columbia Lions in the west and Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes in the east—would have the finances to compete in "an open classification."

Next Game: Sunday, Columbia at VICTORIA.

In the draw for post position Dapper Dan, Bold Lad's stablemate, drew No. 1. Although stable mates, under Kentucky racing rules they will run as separate betting interests.

Narushin, who likely will not start should the going turn up muddy, drew No. 2 with Bold Lad in the favorable No. 3 spot as the field breaks from the head of the stretch, one-quarter mile above the finish line on the one-mile track.

Outside of the trio in order will be Native Charger, Flag Raiser, Carpenter's Rule, Hail to All, Lucky Debonair, Tom Rolfe, Mr. Pak and Swift Ruler.

With the sun shining and the prospects of a fast track for the big race at 2:45 p.m. PDT, Saturday, Trainer F. J. Recio decided to keep Apple Core in the barn. He was hoping for a muddy track.

The entry box was closed shortly after Tom Rolfe from the Pochatan Stable of Ambassador Raymond Guest was made an official starter.

If all 11 go, postward, the derby will have a value of $154,500 with the winner earning $112,000. Of the total purse $25,000 has been earmarked for the second-place finisher, $12,500 for third and $5,000 for fourth.

CHARGER FIRST

Native Charger was the first official entry to be announced. He was entered Wednesday by trainer Ray Metcalf.

TIMES OPEN CREST

Straith, the $100 blazer has been presented annually to Times' champions since 1958.

Also to be decided Sunday are the prizes to be awarded Wayne McDonald and Mike Ott, the finalists in the Hugh Francis (handicap) Trophy competition. The winner receives an expensive wrist watch and the runnerup is assured of a transistor radio.

In all, over $500 worth of prizes will be distributed following Sunday's battles.

Among other prize-winners are defeated semi-finalists Doug Munro, Laurie Kerr, Eric Zwick and Wilbur De Silva; net-prize winners Dennis Mann and Roger Bishop, and Laurie Carroll, Vaughan Trapp, Bill Wightman, Roger Ross, Jim Neilson, Jim Hall, Ray Harrington, George Murphy and Karl Zwick.

Prizes will be presented upon completion of the 36-hole championship final.

Matches, incidentally, will start with 18-hole rounds at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., with the handicap finalists first away.

The championship combatants are due to tee off 15 minutes later.

Irish Faces Red On Opening Night

Westminster Whips Rocks In Dull Lacrosse Battle

New Westminster 8, Victoria 5

By ERNIE FEDORUK

A lacrosse team that doesn't run and doesn't shoot is incomplete. It's like looking at a redhead without freckles.

This was hoped to be a piece of cake, but Victoria Shamrocks dropped a pancake on the Memorial Arena floor Wednesday evening. Their 1965 Inter-City Lacrosse League debut was a flat splat.

New Westminster's entry jumped into the spoiler's role, 8-5, for several good reasons. The no-run, no-shoot methods of Victoria were two of the best.

HAD 3-0 LEAD

It was not a good game, much to the chagrin of 2,123 customers. Typically a season's opener because Doug McRory's Westminster crew didn't impress either.

Still, for the three quarters that counted, the Westminsterers ran a little harder and jumped on the ball a little quicker than the Irish.

The Shamrocks drew applause only after the opening quarter. That's when they trotted off the floor with a 2-0 lead on goals by Bill Munroe and Ron Jay.

They made it 3-0 on Ed Kowalyk's goal in the second minute of the second quarter.

Then the pancake hit the concrete.

Doug Wallsmith scored New Westminster's first goal walking in although his team was short-handed as a result of a major penalty to Bill Wilkes.

Dave Tory got another before half-time to make it 3-2.

BEECH BEAT TWICE

Cliff Sepka tied it up at 3:24 of the third quarter and in less than four minutes the Westminsterers led 6-3. Ed McDonald, a defenceman recruited from Nanaimo, scored twice within a minute after Sepka's goal, and that's when school was out for the Shamrocks.

Shamrocks came to within 6-5 early in the final chukker but Wilkes gave the visitors some breathing room with two powerful goals at 8:19 and 14:07.

Victoria defenceman Ray Beech was off when Wilkes scored his first and Jay was cooling his heels when the game's final goal was scored.

The turning point was the minute in which McDonald scored his two goals. Both times he beat Beech for clear runs at Shamrock goalie Skip Chapman.

MORE WORK ASSURED

Victoria coach Jim McNeill didn't have to be told his team played poorly. He saw the game, but felt "lack of practice" on the spacious Memorial Arena floor "was definitely a factor."

Shamrocks had only one workout in the arena before Wednesday's game.

But they'll have a few more before their second, Tuesday in Vancouver. Then Vancouver comes to Victoria the following night.

In the meantime, McNeill will be trying to put some freckles on his red-faced "redheads."

Smythe Trophy Vote 'Farce'

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail calls the voting method for the new Conn Smythe Trophy a farce.

Sports editor Jim Vipond says in a sports editorial the trophy, donated by the former Toronto Maple Leafs owner for the most valuable player in Stanley Cup playoffs, is to be awarded after a vote of National Hockey League governors.

But, he says, three of the governors—Weston Adams of Boston Bruins, Bruce Norris of Detroit Red Wings and William Jennings of New York Rangers—have not attended a single game in the final round between Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens. Montreal leads the best-of-seven series 3-2.

The editorial adds that each of the absentees has appointed an executive member of his club to appear at the games in his place and vote for a trophy winner.

But this is not enough, Vipond says.

He favors another selection system worked out by Ron Andrews, league statistician.

Under Andrews' plan, the league would invite six former hockey stars to watch playoff games and they would vote on the most valuable player in each game. Their vote totals at the end of the series would then decide the winner.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

Shabby Road Form Puzzle to Coaches

CHICAGO (CP)—All through the National Hockey League season, Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks were good road clubs. Now, all of a sudden, they can't buy a victory away from home.

Before the Stanley Cup playoffs began, the Montrealers were enthusiastic travellers, winning 16 games, losing 15 and tying four on the other fellow's rink during the NHL campaign. They had broken even in Chicago with three wins, three losses and a tie.

"I can't understand it," said Canadiens coach Toe Blake Wednesday. "This year more games were won on the road in our league than ever before. Then we get into the playoffs and..." He broke off with a shrug.

The Hawks, whose deplorable road record in past years has contributed to their failure to finish first in their 38-year NHL career, achieved respectability this season with a 14-15-6 mark. At Montreal they had two wins and two ties in seven games.

Home team wins

The two clubs have met five times since the start of the current best-of-seven cup final and every game has gone to the home team.

Chicago coach Billy Reay, analyzing the situation as the clubs prepared for tonight's sixth game here, felt the harder, smoother ice surface at the Montreal Forum favors the fast-skating, smooth-passing Canadiens. The ice at Chicago Stadium has been affected by the warm spring weather.

Big-Jean Beliveau, who scored two goals and set up two more in Montreal's 6-0 victory at the Forum Tuesday night, agrees.

"The ice was better there than it is in Chicago," the Canadiens' captain said. "But I don't want that to be an excuse for our play here."

WERE IN CUP SQUAD

If the Hawks should repeat their semi-final performance by taking the sixth game here and seventh in Montreal Saturday, they will then have won the 72-year-old cup four times.

Present Hawks who played on the 1961 squad—the last cup triumph — are goaltender Glenn Hall, Pilot, Elmer Vasko, Bill Hay, Hull, Eric Nesterenko, Mikita and Wharram.

The Canadiens, currently tied with Toronto Maple Leafs for the most cup championships, are shooting for a record of 11 with this season's series.

Surfer was claimed for $2,500 at Bay Meadows before Christmas. Three years ago, Surfer was flashing around tracks in New York State and in 1962 won $36,800.

Surfer finished second five lengths behind Surfer, which paid $11.80 on winning tickets.

Commons Critics Dissect Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—The life of Mr. Cameron's amendment to the minority Liberal government's budget has been increased to $100 a month from $75 and that basic income tax exemptions should be increased to $3,000 for married couples and $1,500 for single persons.

The government is expected to vote down a New Democratic motion of non-confidence in the Commons today. Mr. Nowlan said the 10-per cent increase in the old age pension income tax cut announced in the budget is "penny-pinching" and purely political. It will give relief to those who needed other tests of confidence in the government in the 1965 session.

Mr. Cameron said the sales tax cut is too small to stimulate the economy and will annoy many confidence motion more than find out how little benefit they receive. There was no guarantee rich people would spend their extra $100 on Canadian consumer goods or services.

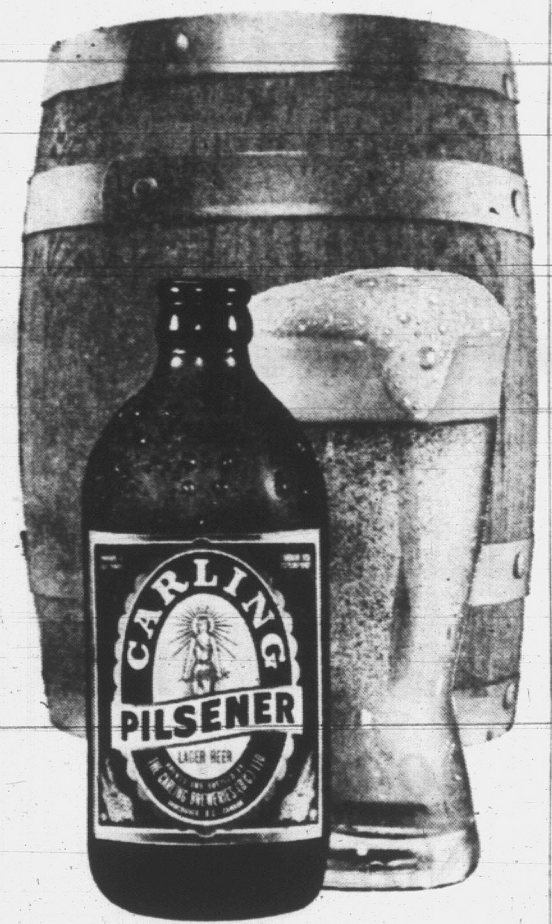

He called for sharply increased spending on higher education, urban renewal and programs aimed at eliminating unemployment. His motion, which comes to a vote Monday, criticized the government for failing to repeal the 11-per cent sales tax on production machinery and to provide tax relief to lower-income people and pension increases in the face of the rising cost of living.

Martin 'Aware' of Que. Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said in part in the Quebec-France discussions "well before" they were concluded in February. The three parties had agreed that an exchange of diplomatic notes between Canada and France would be necessary to give the Quebec "accord" its validity in international law.

Mr. Martin said the accord was signed and the covering documents were exchanged Feb. 27. He told Douglas Harkness (PQ-Calgary-North) that he discussed the "accord" last December with then French Ambassador Raymond Bousquet.

DOMINATED BY BUSINESS

Senate a 'Den' for Party Hacks

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Fisher, New Democratic deputy leader, said in the Commons Tuesday that the main use of the Senate is to take care of "bagmen" for the party in power and of ministers and MPs the prime minister wants to "boot upstairs."

As a result, he said, the Senate is dominated by businessmen protecting the interests of the business community. "One senator even has a stock ticker in his office."

A Senate appointment almost amounted to a guarantee that the new senator would be named to the boards of several companies, which hoped to exercise "leverage" over legislation affecting them.

Mr. Fisher, MP for Port Arthur, spoke on the resolution preceding a bill providing for retirement of future senators at age 75 on an $8,000 annual pension. Present senators, appointed for life, would be free to stay on or retire.

The bill was given first reading without a formal vote, opposition members saying "on division" to record their disagreement.

Of the nine senators appointed by Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Fisher said, seven had been Liberal party fund-raisers or organizers and two were former MPs who made way for new ministers. Almost all senators appointed by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker when he was prime minister also were "party hacks and bagmen."

He said "the prize specimen" among Pearson appointees was Senator Louis Gelin, Chief Liberal fund raiser in Quebec and a key figure at the Dorion judicial inquiry into the Lucien Rivard affair.

Mr. Fisher said the Fathers of Confederation saw the upper chamber as a noble institution of sober second thought but reality was far removed from this ideal.

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) said, Senate reform is necessary but he was anxious to defend the institution.

He would like to see the provinces have some say in appointments, so members of minority parties would have an opportunity to become senators. Pre-

Book Thrown At Driver

Sarwan Singh Bains, 924 Market St., learned Wednesday the hard way that it does not pay to drive while impaired.

A few weeks ago he was convicted and fined in Colwood court for impaired driving. Later the same day he was picked up in the city and charged with a similar offence.

He was also charged with hit-and-run driving. Magistrate William Ostler said his conduct was "hard to imagine."

He sentenced Bains to one month in jail for impaired driving, an additional 10 days for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and he suspended his licence.

EX-BCE HEAD:

'Don't Regulate Gasoline Firms'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The former president of B.C. Electric Company told the royal commission on gasoline prices Wednesday that he sees no need for government regulation of the gasoline industry.

"The industry is working successfully, in good competitive circumstances and showing a high degree of responsibility," said Dr. H. L. Purdy, now a lecturer on economics at the University of British Columbia. "The fact that somewhere fractional things are going on (in business) I don't think has any relation to what is going on in B.C."

Dr. Purdy said that although he was called as a witness by Shell Canada Ltd., he had no direct business relationship with the firm and was an outside independent witness.

LAST RESORT

He said regulation as a public utility would tend to increase the price of gasoline to the consumer. Such regulation should be employed only as a last resort in the face of single company monopoly.

Dr. Purdy also rejected a claim made at the inquiry that gasoline users pay too much, and in effect, subsidize users of heating oils and heavy fuel oils. He said after a detailed analysis of comparative costs and energy values of oil, gas, electricity and other fuels, oils could not be priced materially higher without becoming non-competitive and risking loss of market to other energy sources.

It was unlikely any industry in Canada could satisfy the textbook definition of perfect competition, but that the B.C. oil industry had all the earmarks of "effective workable competition."

He said these earmarks were: progressiveness in process and product development, big production units permitting economies of scale, absence of long-continued price stability, no deliberate restrictions of output. Dr. Purdy said another characteristic — profits comparable to other industries — was not present but was sought by the industry.

JOHN D UNRUFFLED DURING MONTREAL JAUNT

'If Ashes—Tories Will Rise'

MONTREAL (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker confessed to a few flaws in his personal bilingual equipment Wednesday but expressed confidence about his party's prospects in largely French-speaking Quebec.

"If these are ashes, I've seen today a phoenix rise from the ashes," Mr. Diefenbaker said of the Conservative organization in the province.

Mention of the recent departure from Tory ranks of former Quebec Conservative Leader Leon Balcer left the Opposition leader unruffled as he confronted Montreal reporters at a press conference.

Mr. Balcer, now the independent member of Parliament for Trois-Rivières, was quoted as making a recent reference to a "threat" to commit suicide if civic authorities tried to put drain pipes across her property. English marathon walker Dr. Barbara Moore, today a bull-dozer and digger were at work on her property.

Diefenbaker and his Western cowboys."

Mr. Diefenbaker, who sits for Prince Albert, Sask., in the Commons, said: "Mr. Balcer for a long time apparently liked to ride on the fence. But we found he tried to determine the direction of all those in the corral and outside."

The remark was greeted with chuckles by five-Tory MPs from Quebec who flanked their leader at the conference.

"After the Gordon budget (brought down by the finance minister Monday night) and his home province and went on to lambaste the Fulton-Favreau cold reception it has received any idea that it was an election budget would have to be given second thoughts," he said.

Many of the interviewing reporters were French-speaking and some asked whether Mr. Diefenbaker thought national party leaders should be bilingual.

"I read French with the same facility as I read English," the Conservative leader replied. "But for the life of me you've heard my pronunciation."

"It's awful," someone said, and the Tory chief joined in a wave of laughter.

He declined comment on the current controversy over the use of French in the schools of his home province and went on to lambaste the Fulton-Favreau at the press conference he called for the convening of a national constitutional conference, at which federal and provincial legislators, constitutional experts and representatives of all major interests could consider any changes necessary in the Canadian constitution.

The formula, worked out as a federal-provincial conference last fall, would provide for amendment of the British North America Act without the need for reference to the British Parliament.

Mr. Fulton's possible return to federal from British Columbia politics was looked on as a possible challenge to Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership, a reporter remarked.

It is not a challenge, said Mr. Diefenbaker, and anyway "I have never felt that challenges should not take place."

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness—and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Friday, April 30.

This news was released here today by M.D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison said that he, himself, will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday at the Empress Hotel.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing me," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five percent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks, to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth of the organization behind it. Harrison and his affiliates maintain treatment clinics in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico. And their staff trichologists regularly do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Untouched photographs made four months apart.

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 percent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish—by the time he comes to see a Harrison trichologist. He's tried everything. So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: That baldness is hereditary; that hair naturally loses hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Harrison in person, learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems, ask the desk clerk at the Empress Hotel tomorrow between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Harrison's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

OTHERS RECEIVE MORE FUNDS

Hydro Grant to Victoria Lower

Victoria will be one of the few municipalities to experience a cut this year in grants paid in lieu of taxes by B.C. Hydro. This was indicated today by provincial and city officials following a provincial cabinet order regularizing the system for B.C. Hydro payments.

Most municipalities will receive higher grants as a result of the elimination of an arbutus mission and generation facilities due the 1961 payment except for the last three years based on the taxes paid of its gas and electricity sales.

The municipalities must be notified by July 31 what their individual payments will be this year. In succeeding years not to exceed $89,606 each year since year. In succeeding years not to exceed $89,606 this year. Because of a reduction in B.C. Hydro holdings here.

The cabinet order said that the money does not have to be paid over until Nov. 30 of this year. The order also said that in no case will the new formula result in a reduction of the 1961 payment except for the last three years based on the taxes paid of its gas and electricity sales.

However, about $7,000 of the $11,000 assessment loss will be offset by the 1 per cent revenue payment.

In addition, the old commission building will be added to the provincial government's holdings on which it pays Victoria a 15-mill grant in lieu of taxes.

The cabinet order also decreed that B.C. Hydro will have to pay improvement districts and the provincial government on the same basis for its holdings in unorganized territory.

A provincial official pointed out that the new formula includes a growth factor that will produce higher grants in successive years for many municipalities. He said it was the most liberal policy in Canada for local government payments by a public utility.

Beer Had No Effect On Youth: Pathologist

A young man Wednesday night told how his buddy spent the last few hours of his life last Friday night.

Egidio Di Maizio, 389 Kerr, was testifying at the inquest into the death of Ronald Garside, 1712 Bay, in a two-car collision at Obed and Bodega early last Saturday morning.

The inquest was adjourned after three hours without hearing from Garry B. Haut, 20, of 920 Jasmine, the other driver involved.

He will give evidence when the inquest resumes at Saanich courtroom next Wednesday night.

Mr. Di Maizio said Garside and he went out together last Friday night. They drove around downtown for a while and then got someone to buy beer for them at the liquor store.

He said they went to a dis-

ARRESTED IN HAWAII

U.S. Deports Canadian

HONOLULU (AP) — William Louie, 27-year-old Canadian Chinese who Tuesday defied a deportation order by refusing to leave Hawaii, was arrested Wednesday by U.S. immigration service officials.

Emmett D. Kelliher, assistant district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Honolulu, said Louie, formerly of Edmonton, will be escorted aboard a Seattle-bound flight leaving Honolulu at 10 p.m. today. The flight will connect with a Vancouver-bound plane, Kelliher said.

Louie is being held in Honolulu City-County Jail.

A Canadian, Louie lived and worked in Hawaii about two years. He arrived with his wife, a Canadian whom he married in Vancouver in 1957.

Louie claims he is being discriminated against because he is Chinese, and the couple picked the immigration service offices in Honolulu earlier this week.

Kelliher denied that Louie's racial descent has anything to do with the matter. He is being deported because his request for an extension of time in the United States has been denied, the official said.

Kelliher said Louie broke immigration rules by accepting employment while in the country on a temporary visa.

Arthur Mayse

There is in our town a connoisseur of good food and a friend of fine cooks whose name is Dolly Güelpa. She is ample of spirit and of person. On Tuesday evening at the Curling Rink, I was one of 700 well-wishers from Victoria, Vancouver and up-Island who drank and ate to Miss Güelpa's health at the Culinary Arts Ball.

Especially, we ate. The drinking was mild and incidental. But the eating was a fact, in fact, the only word for that feast is gargantuan.

Since this annual and delightful affair has already been saluted in our news columns I will merely repeat here that both Dolly Güelpa and Victoria-Vancouver Island branch of Canadian Restaurant Association, of which she is secretary, were each celebrating their twentieth year together.

Add to this explanation the fact that Dolly has been secretary of the branch since it was formed, and we are ready to buckle down to the main business of the occasion.

As I've indicated, this was to eat... and eat... and eat.

As an appetizer, I suggest a tour of the buffet with branch president and master of ceremonies Bill West.

I have read many times in old romances of "the groaning board," and here it was in all its lavish splendor.

It consisted of trestle tables laid end to end for a distance of about 75 feet. At one end was a thatched roof under which simmered, steamed and bubbled such Chinese delicacies as sweet-and-sour ribs, chow mein, noodles, egg rolls, and such almond chicken as must be sampled to be believed.

Close by was a separate little groaning board bowlegged from its weight of pies, cakes and pastries.

But these tasty edibles were only the outsiders of the main array.

Let us turn from them, and stroll, drooling along those long, linked tables.

The dishes, each a work of art as well as some chef's culinary masterpiece, crowd each other cheek by jowl.

Here is a ham from a worthy pig, so glazed and decorated that to carve it seems all but vandalistic.

Close by are swans swimming—a fleet of cygnets and their stately parent, created from beef tallow by Nanaimo Vocational School cooking class, and sumptuously laden with grapes, pears, apples, bananas and pineapples.

Salmon from Island waters swim garnished and garlanded toward their date with a plate. To praise one above another is unjust; but two of these noble fish demand special mention.

One is Nanaimo Vocational's toothsome fellow, upon whose baked side is glazed a scene of sailboats and bull-rushes. The other, a splendid, deep-bodied spring, was caught at French Creek specially for the banquet, and rushed south to be cooked and decked.

Here are Cornish hens with their little drumsticks waiting to be grasped, and close by, a winter scene in potato salad with eggs-and-olive-penguins, handwork of a navy petty officer, and a few steps away, a suckling pig whose crisp brown rind and delicate meat are a feast to the knife.

But this wealth of superlative chow was to be devoured as well as admired.

Table after table of diners loaded up for the vast smorgasbord; and while I isn't for me to boast, I was not backward in the attack.

In plain fact, I turned from gourmet to glutton at the first bite, and but for an ominous creaking of my belt, might have crowned my third helping with a fourth.

Victoria Taxes Up Five Mills

By AB KENT

City council today struck a 1965 mill rate of 62.9, an increase of 5 mills over 1964.

HORSE FASTER THAN ENGINE, SAYS CHIEF

Victoria Fire Chief John Abbott took the bit between his teeth Wednesday.

While city aldermen plodded through fire budget estimates, Mr. Abbott came up with a theory that horse-drawn fire buggies were faster than modern diesels.

He told them: "Horses were faster... and that's a fact." This comment, reigned in support from Ald. Geoff Edgely, who chimed in: "I can understand that."

Stirred on by the support, Chief Abbott galloped on to explain his clipperty-clop idea.

"We made better time when we had horses," he said. "Every year it takes us longer to get through downtown traffic."

The estimates committee seemed impressed hearing this straight from the horse's mouth and passed the entire fire department budget.

Earlier they had been reluctant to leave the starting post in view of an $18,000 increase for staff and equipment this year.

For a while there were strong odds in favor of cutting personnel. But the longshot paid off.

Aldermen were powerless to alter a 3.6 mill hike in school tax rate, accounting for 72 per cent of the new tax rate.

The 1965 increase includes 9 of a mill for general debt purposes and an amount equivalent to half a mill to buy regional parkland, provided other Greater Victoria areas enter the greenbelt scheme.

Mayor R. B. Wilson commented after the 1½-day council budget-boiling session: "I would like to commend the staff for their good work and constructive attitude toward achieving a good budget. Adding only 9 10ths of a mill on the general rate makes a very acceptable budget."

Council made the comment a formal resolution, then authorized the solicitor to draw up by-laws enabling tax bills to be worked out.

TAX INCREASE

Since Wednesday morning, aldermen worked with department heads striking a net $74,625 from 1965 spending estimates, $16,100 of it this morning.

Besides paring sums from expected outlays, aldermen padded estimated revenues in a number of cases, including building, plumbing and electrical permit fees, public scale fees, miscellaneous rents and franchises, police court fines, court and jail rentals.

Ordered to Leave Animals...

Determined to fight to the end, surrounded by the friends she refuses to desert, Mother Cecilia sends her reply. The answer is... "No."

... Mother Determined to Stay

This is their life. Mother and two of her devoted helpers make the daily rounds of the animals they have come to love. Work will go on, they say.

FULL HEARING PLEDGED

Beer Cafeterias Studied

A B.C. Hotels Association delegation from Vancouver today would seek permission to have customers order drinks from the bar and carry them back to their tables during slack periods.

This would allow layoff of about 25 per cent of the 3,500 union waiters and bartenders in the province.

Association president W. S. Wainwright and secretary-manager Roy Corbett were to head the group but no Victoria hotelmen were participating in the delegation, Victoria director James Neely said.

Col. McGugan indicated they would receive a full hearing. He said the board had not been asked for the change before and was not bound by a self-imposed precedent.

The Vancouver hotel men gave notice earlier this week they would seek permission to have customers order drinks from the bar and carry them back to their tables during slack periods.

At present, besides a 15-cent-an-hour payment for a health and welfare fund, the Vancouver bartenders receive $2.24 an hour and waiters $1.75 an hour. James Morrison, president of Vancouver local 676 of the Beverage Dispensers Union, predicted that if the LCB permitted the self-service system.

Nuns Defy RC Church On Shelter

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Roman Catholic Church authorities have ordered closure of the Good Shepherd Shelter near Albert Head. But Mother Cecilia Mary says she will defy the instructions.

She said she has the full support of Mother Superior Ursula of St. Mary's Priory to continue operating the shelter for abandoned stray animals despite the order Wednesday from Rev. Andrew Heber of the Benedictines of Westminster Abbey in Mission City.

The shelter, run by the Benedictine order of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, must be abandoned by Tuesday, the order said.

Father Heber said Catholics are surprised to hear stories about "a nun who handles her own finances and disposes of her property as she chooses."

He said he issued the order because of his office as "apostolic visitor to the Sisters of the Love of Jesus," but the nuns say he is not the apostolic visitor.

'Close Order Came from Bishop'

"He is just carrying out Bishop Remi de Roo's orders," said Mother Cecilia Mary.

In a lengthy letter, Father Heber said:

"This obligation is put on you in keeping with the holy vows of stability and obedience which you have vowed to God."

"I realize that it will be a difficult choice for you to make, but I feel it is my obligation to do so in keeping with the directions given by the Congregation of Religious, that the authority of the nuns is for 100 years and of the Superior must be established."

'Must Make Church View Clear'

He said the church had to make its position clear regarding the shelter at 3842 Duke Road.

"Catholics are not a little surprised and puzzled at the references made in the papers to a nun who handles her own finances and disposes of her property as she chooses," the letter continued.

"Non-Catholics want to hear a definite statement from the church. They think that since work at the shelter is being done by nuns it has the approval of ecclesiastical authorities. Others are accusing the church of excessive concern for animals and think that perhaps she is benefiting by the shelter."

Father Heber said he knows his action will be regarded as an indication of cruelty to animals. "I wish it were not taken as such," he said.

There was a legitimate area for nuns to care for animals as long as it is done in the spirit of obedience to the proper authorities.

"But I share the conviction of many who think that the work done at the shelter is not in the best interest of animal welfare."

He quoted a Roman Catholic priest as saying that animal lovers are sometimes cruel in their kindness, destroying the health and fine instincts of animals "by excessive pampering."

He added: "I know that with very short notice, the SPCA or other such agency could take care of the animals in a humane way."

He didn't say so, but the nuns concluded this means putting the animals to death.

Mother Cecilia Mary and Mother Superior Ursula made these points in reply to the letter.

● No rules have been broken. ● No proof of authority exists for Father Heber or Bishop de Roo to order the shelter's closure. ● Only those who started the shelter can close it. ● They are not bound by their religious vows to carry out the order.

● They don't think the bishop could excommunicate them for refusing to close the shelter. ● The nuns cannot be ordered to return to the priory since they have never left it and still belong to it. ● The late Bishop Hill of Victoria gave his blessing to the shelter when it started. ● "We shan't do anything," said Mother Cecilia. ● "We will just carry on."

"No one has the authority to close the shelter except those who started it."

Schools Raise Canadian Flag Next Monday

May 3 will be official maple leaf flag-raising day for Greater Victoria schools.

Most schools missed the national ceremony Feb. 15 because of a shortage of flags of the new design.

In a bulletin to all school administrators in the area John Gough, district superintendent of schools, says the new flag is now being distributed and asks that special ceremonies be held May 3 to celebrate the flag-raising.

Mr. Gough says the form of the new flag is being distributed to individual school principals but suggests that the Queen's Proclamation be read in English and French at the ceremony.

DEAR ABBY...

Repeat Request

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have three daughters, 11, 15 and 17, who can't wait until they reach the age when they will be their "own boss." In your opinion is there such an age? I believe you once said there was not, and you listed a few accomplishments a girl had to achieve before she could be her own "boss." I would appreciate your reviewing that list.

A MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: In order to be one's own boss (in my opinion) a girl must be able to leave her parents' home, pay for her own clothing, insurance, and medical and dental care, and pay for the continuance of her own education, transportation and recreation. Then she has the privilege of choosing her own company, making her own decisions and being her own "boss."

DEAR ABBY: In your column you stated that the widow who removed her wedding ring is thereby telling the world that she is "looking." I cannot speak for other widows but, in my case, nothing could be further from the truth. When my husband died a year ago, after 30 years of happiness, I placed MY wedding ring on his finger as a token of my undying love for him. My wedding ring had never been removed from the time he placed it on my finger during our wedding ceremony. We are both of Irish descent, and it is an old Irish custom. It has been observed by all the women in both our families as far back as we can remember. And there is no record of any woman in either family having remarried. Personally, I could no more remarry again than I could have been unfaithful to him while he was still living. And I know many ringless widows who share my feeling. Furthermore, I resent such sweeping generalities.

RINGLESS BUT NOT LOOKING.

DEAR RINGLESS: No offence intended. I should have used the word "available." You are not, but other widows without rings possibly are. Thank you for your enlightening letter.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for telling that mother whose 23-year-old son wanted to marry a 33-year-old widow that the marriage could work. If that "older" woman loves her 23-year-old husband half as much as I love MY husband, the mother should be grateful. My husband is 20 and I am 31. We've been married ten months and my young husband has taught me more about living and being a mature woman, wife and mother, than anyone in my life. He proudly refers to his 12-year-old stepson as "my son." The children adore him and I worship him. He has done more for us than either of my two former husbands. (You see, I was no prize package.) I would go to the ends of the earth and back again for this man.

PROUD TO BE HIS WIFE.

DEAR PROUD: Congratulations but, in my book, you are still on your honeymoon. If, after ten YEARS, you can write the above letter, I would say you had it made. It's not difficult to understand why a twice-married, 31-year-old divorcee with three children would worship a young man who would marry her and adopt her children. Be good to him. He's one in a million.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Belt? A Bracelet? This Can Be Anything!

By PENNY SAVER

I had an appointment for lunch yesterday with one of my best friends and when she showed up at the restaurant, I turned positively green with envy. This girl has so much style—such terrific taste in her clothes—that I felt very dowdy and gauche.

One thing I noticed immediately about her outfit—a lovely jade green silk dress in a shift style—was her belt. It was an eye-catching circle of coppery-brown wooden beads, which neatly hugged her waistline and highlighted the whole ensemble with a painted inlay of toning green.

When I asked her about it, she laughed and replied, "Oh, everyone asks me about this belt. They never believe me, but this is actually a necklace!"

I didn't believe her either until later, when she took it off to show me. "These are all carved from natural wood," she said, "straight from West Germany. What I like about them is that they are so original in design and so versatile. I'll show you what I mean."

With a flick of her hand, she looped the necklace over her wrist several times to form a lovely bracelet. Then she wrapped it about her neck for a choker and let it hang for a matinee-length necklace.

The reason this is possible is because the beads are strung on elasticized thread, almost unbreakable, with the ability to be worn in innumerable ways. Prices of these range, my friend told me, from $1.50 to $8. "And the workmanship is so intricate and so fine," she added, "I adore 'em!"

Here's another little item she told me about which she bought at the same store. It's a little French doll, suitable for baby or hanging from the rear-view mirror in a car or as an ornament. Made of plastic, these little charmers are noted especially for their facial expressions which are hilariously funny. Price is $1.98.

If you'd like to know where my friend shopped, give Penny a call at 382-3121 and find out.

Empey-Edwards Vows Exchanged In St. John's Anglican Church

Arrangements of spring flowers were at the altar and nosegays of similar flowers marked the pews of St. John's Anglican Church when Rev. F. W. Hayes officiated at the ceremony uniting Bernice Margaret Edwards and William Gerald Empey in marriage.

During the signing of the register, organist Kenneth Ansdell played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Edwards, 2883 Blackwood Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Empey, 2165 Stelly's Cross Road.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie, styled with a train extending from the bodice back to the ankles. She carried the bell-shaped skirt and the scalloped neckline of the bodice. Sleeves ended in ruffled points. Her four-tier tulle-trimmed butterfly veil nestled from a French organza rose headpiece, starred with seed pearls. Yellow roses, white feathered carnations and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Identical gowns of yellow crystal charm, made by the bride, were choice of maid of honor Miss Nancy Murton, her cousin, and bridesmaids, the

By far the cheapest and best fertilizer for your lawn and shrubs. One dollar buys over 600 pounds of topsoil which if applied as a top-dressing for your lawn will develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. On the other hand one dollar of chemical fertilizer will buy only 15 lbs. of fertilizer which moreover contains only 20 per cent of plantfood and at best will only act as a shortlived stimulant.

The reason for the growing popularity is simply this: Miracle Flour is positively mess-free... it pours just like salt, doesn't dust all over the place as regular flour does. And, as the name suggests, it blends instantly with other dry ingredients. You can now throw away your sifter. How well does it bake, you ask. Answer: it bakes as fine as the finest flour can—perfectly. Give new Miracle Flour a try—join the swing to easy, mess-free homebaking!

WHEN A GROUP OF US GOT TOGETHER last night, it turned out we all had one worry in common... our husbands drive themselves too hard. They never really relax. One girl had found the answer—whenever her husband has to make a business trip, he goes CN. It was her idea in the first place, but it's made such a difference to him, he's convinced! No matter how tired or tense he is when he leaves, she doesn't worry about him driving carelessly. She knows he'll get a few hours' precious relaxation. She dumped up a lot of enthusiasm for Canadian National among the rest of us that day. Me, for one!

Gedney-Grant Wedding

IN CONNECTICUT FOR VOWS

Dr. and Mrs. Ronald M. Grant, 1514 Shorncliffe Drive, travelled to Stamford, Conn., recently to hear marriage vows exchanged between their daughter, Carol Theresa, and Dennis John Gedney, Riverside, Conn.

The groom's parents are Mrs. Richard E. Gedney, Riverside, Conn., and the late Mr. Gedney. Red and white carnations were at the altar of St. John's Catholic Church, for the ceremony at which Fr. John P. Odlie officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of white, embroidered bodice, styled with a fitted bodice featuring a high neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her veil misted to her waist from a self-fabric coronet. White carnations, red sweetheart roses and ivy were in her cascade bouquet.

A rose-toned pure silk gown, styled with a bell-shaped skirt, was the choice of maid of honor, Miss Cathleen L. Olin. Headpiece was a toning whimsie and she carried a colonial bouquet of deep-pink carnations and sweetheart roses.

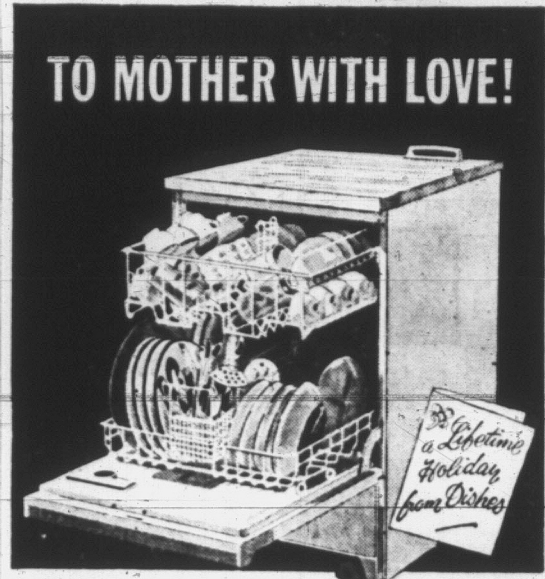

The bride's brother, Patrick

C. Grant, Cos Cob, Conn., was best man. Ushers were Richard R. Gedney and Lawrence King. Patrick Grant proposed the toast to his sister at the reception which followed in the New Englander Motel, Riverside, Conn. A three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and flanked by white candles in silver candelabra, centred the bride's table.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip to Mt. Snow, Vt., the bride donned a beige and brown walking suit, beige straw hat and beige accessories. Orchids on corsage completed her ensemble.

The couple is now making their home in Norwalk, Conn.

New Group for Service Wives

OTTAWA (CP)—The Catholic Women's League of Canada has organized a new diocesan council of the military vicariate of Canada for wives of servicemen living with their husbands on RCAF bases at home and overseas.

Eventually the wives of men in the army and navy will also belong to the new council, which already has close to 1,000 members in 12 local councils across the country.

The league's national office announced Wednesday that women now belonging to local parish councils, off their husbands' bases will resign and form new groups of their own.

Authorization for the new organization was given at the league's national convention in Charlottetown last August.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A Little Planning Can Take Fatigue from Your Life

I receive letters from women all over the country who tell me that they feel tired most of the time. Some of these are business women and some are home-bodies.

The first thing to do is to see your doctor so he can remedy any physical disorder which is leading to chronic fatigue. More likely, the plan of your life is at fault.

We rush all day long. We live in the midst of telephone calls, screaming sirens, buses, committee meetings, shopping, traffic jams, club work, church work, radio and television, PTA, social engagements and entertaining, and the myriad other responsibilities and obligations connected with a job or a family.

We hurry past things we want and things we want to see. We never take time to think about or feel the fundamentals of existence. Many women never have a minute alone from the time they get up in the morning until they go to sleep at night.

Every woman has a right to some time alone in her own home. Children respond wonderfully to the idea that their mother is an individual with some rights of her own, and that when she closes her door to rest, questions and discussions can usually wait. This can be arranged if you insist on it.

Surely four factors in fatigue are hurry, worry, noise and no time alone. The feeling of having to hurry is the damaging part of hurry. You can hurry while sitting down or feel relaxed while dashing from one appointment or duty to another.

It is just a knack of learning to meet each day and to work in a relaxed mood.

A physician once told me that he has found hurry to be one of the most usual causes for fatigue and that often it is the only factor. He told me about an underweight patient he had who was exhausted all of the time. She had a job, so she would get up in the morning, stand erect with your feet com-door, barely making the dead-hands behind your back. Now line for her arrival at the office, swing your arms forward and

He urged her to go to sleep up and clap your hands in front a little earlier at night and get of you. Continue. Keep the morning so that she could dress exercise, and eat in a leisurely manner. If you would like to have my life in every way she could, hope with your request for leaf- same philosophy into her entire stamped, self-addressed envelope. With such simple measures she let 24 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

If you live in this sort of mad-house, try to control it as best you can. Some women seem to have inexhaustible energy, but most must plan their lives to conserve their pep.

Exercise is relaxing. Often you feel least like it when you need it most. Try this one. Stand erect with your feet comfortably separated. Keep your arms stiff as you clap your door, barely making the dead-hands behind your back. Now line for her arrival at the office, swing your arms forward and in your flowerbeds all season.

Get rid of the weeds

In two shakes.

That's all... if you use this remarkable new gardening aid. Flower beds, rock gardens shrubberies... just two sprinklings of Greenfield Weed Preventer and you can relax for the rest of the season. No more pulling up weeds one by one, no more fiddling around with messy sprays. Greenfield Weed Preventer is unique. Its granules work underground to prevent weeds from germinating. But those Greenfield granules won't harm established flowers, shrubs or bulbs; they just stop weeds. Before they start. The 25 oz. shaker can of Greenfield Weed Preventer covers 250 square feet of garden.

And the cost? Only $1.98. Not much to pay for a weed-free summer, is it?

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Famed French chanteuse Lucienne Boyer, so often in other years a favorite with the New York nightclubs, has told friends she is becoming the bride of Patrice Joffin, 40, a painter. Lucienne is 65, he is 36. The Kim Sisters lost their mother, Mrs. Young, at this writing two of them were scheduled to fly to Seoul, Korea, for the funeral. The third, Al Ja is still recuperating from a tonsillectomy. Some of the underworld fads are convinced that Joe Bananas is still alive—that he managed to sneak into Italy. Kathleen ("Forever Amber") Winsor whose latest novel, "Wanderers Eastward, Wanderers West" runs for 947 pages, is now engaged on another book—believe it or not, a cookbook!

Rita Hayworth will get a role opposite Glenn Ford in MGM's "The Young Man." As I get the story, it was at the special insistence of Glenn who still feels he owes her a debt of gratitude because 25 years ago it was Rita, then a dominant star, who persuaded the producers to hire Glenn Ford, not too well known then, for her picture, "The Lady in Question." Al Cooper, the restaurateur, is heading for Russia to bring back his only living kin, a long lost sister he was finally able to make contact with after almost three decades. She's been a school official there. A note for baseball fans—May 24 will mark the 30th anniversary of the first major league game played at night. Happened in Cincinnati.

Ingrid Bergman has promised to come to the U.S. to promote her starring film, "Yellow Rolls-Royce." She returns late in May for rehearsals for her London stage debut in "A Month in the Country," scheduled to open June 2 at Guildford in Surrey. Edward Elkins, producer of "Golden Boy" is one chap who isn't too happy about all of Sammy Davis' away-from-the-play activities—those stunts of his, etc. Worried Sammy will exhaust his physical strength. Sammy, on the other hand, insists he doesn't consider it "work" at all—loves the extracurricular action.

I hear the Maharajah of Baroda has put her beautiful apartment in Paris on the market (satin-covered walls, gold chandeliers, etc.). Asking price $350,000. Rex Harrison with his own Oscar tucked neatly away told director George Stevens that he is convinced next year's choice to beat will be Max Von Sydow for his portrayal of Christ in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Hard to keep up with George Hamilton's date. The latest (at the Forum) was debutante Topsy Taylor. No telling who'll be tomorrow's entry. But in London, the talk is all about the growing romance between the young Prince William of Gloucester and the beautiful 20-year-old showgirl, Dierdra O'Dea. Now what will they think of next? Here our attention is called to a new album entitled: "Music to Read James Bond By."

What bugged the rights marchers en route to Montgomery, Ala., was that the National Guard troops sent to protect them sported Confederate flags on their breast pockets and helmet liners. According to "Insiders' Newsletter," General Alexander G. Paxton conceived the insignia, insisting he has received authorization from Army G-1. Turn of the wheel stuff. Dan Dailey and Ray Heatherton were at Mike Manuche's at separate tables. Twenty-eight years ago they were together in "Debs in Arms." Daily as a chorus boy. Heatherton as a male lead.

The consensus among the gals is that Gloria Swanson looks some 20 years younger these days. There was a burst of envy as she entered the Voinis the other night with Earl Blackwell. Peter Sellers must love animals. Last year he starred in "The Pink Panther." His next is "What's New Pussycat?" Oh, well, if the rise in rate of crime in New York deters you, move to Majorca. Boasts the lowest crime rate in the world. But, of course, there are no subways there.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions. He selects answers to be published. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Brian Berleau, age 11, of San Diego, Calif., for his question:

What causes the seasons?

Pessimists tend to ask this question in midwinter, perhaps. Place small pictures of the globe seeking something to blame for the grim weeks of grizzly weather. It is a most popular question written to Andy, and almost everyone asks it in the cheerful spring season. This says Andy, proves his readers are cheerful optimists.

Our early ancestors observed and charted the seasons with great accuracy, but the explanation of the yearly changes had to wait until we had a correct picture of the solar system and the motions of the earth within it. The seasons change because the earth's axis is tilted 23½ degrees to a line at right angles to its orbit. This wordy statement needs a bit of explaining of its own. It is easier to grasp if you sketch a diagram. Draw the smiling sun in the centre of a sheet of paper. Surround it with a large oval to represent the orbit of the earth. Place small pictures of the globe in four positions along the north, south, east and west points of its orbit. Now for the complicated question written to Andy, and almost everyone asks it in the cheerful spring season. This says Andy, proves his readers are cheerful optimists.

Longest Day In June

The left of the diagram shows the earth's position in December. Notice that the north pole is tilted away from the sun, and the Arctic Circle remains within the unlighted side of the globe. North of the equator the nights are longer than the days, causing the chilly winter season. At the opposite end of the tilted axis is the south pole which tips toward the sun. The Antarctic Circle rotates in perpetual daylight, and the Southern Hemisphere enjoys the longer days of the summer season.

The right side of the diagram shows the earth's position in June. Conditions are reversed, and now the north pole tips toward the sun. The Arctic Circle rotates in perpetual daylight, and we enjoy the longer days of summer. The March position is at the top of the diagram, and the September position is at the bottom. Neither pole is tilted toward the sun in these positions, and all over the globe the days and nights are more or less equal. However, while we are enjoying the cheerful season of spring, the South Hemisphere is having the prewinter season of fall.

The four seasons of the year are separated by four calendar dates. The midsummer and midwinter dates are solstices when one hemisphere has its longest and the other its shortest day of the year. The summer solstice is June 22, and the winter solstice is Dec. 21. The dates of equal day and night are the equinoxes. The spring equinox is March 21, and the fall equinox is Sept. 22.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Daring Project 'Pairs' Schools

By JACK HUTTON

A daring project under study since September to "pair" high schools across Canada with schools in other Commonwealth countries has been unveiled by the Canadian Education Association.

And I say bravo.

Any student council in search of a 1965-66 project would do well to spend an hour sometime soon talking over this idea with local school authorities.

The plan works this way. The local school, after considering possibilities with staff and senior students, contacts the CEA, stating a preference inside the Commonwealth. Most of the links are expected to be with the developing countries.

A London office will be responsible for putting schools in touch with each other. Once that's done, success of the venture will depend on how the local school responds—and particularly the student body.

The possibilities are unlimited. CEA planners say they expect that students will exchange a range of correspondence, books, pictures, art, tapes, films, portfolios and other objects.

But the contact needn't stop there. Eventually students and teachers may even change places. This, of course, requires an immense amount of liaison and financial backing from somewhere. It wouldn't happen overnight.

Response so far has only confirmed what the project's planners have suspected for a long time: there is an unbelievable hunger across Canada to learn more about other parts of the world.

About half the high schools in Alberta and Saskatchewan have already submitted applications with the CEA for twin schools. Applications are expected to come in from Ontario schools shortly.

The future? Some principals I know expect that almost every large secondary school across Canada will be involved in the project in some way or other. Most will have twin schools overseas.

Any student council that would like to get involved should remember one important fact: this isn't a short-term project. The links will extend far beyond the school career of any student now in a classroom. Local planners will have to think about a continuing school committee.

What are the benefits of such a link?

Every student I know who has visited another country—even for a short time—returns with a broader viewpoint that's hard to define but obvious to see. Correspondence isn't the same thing—but it's the next best.

Shares Interest

I always remember a friend who shared an interest in French with me. The year we were both in Grade 10 he was offered the chance to spend a few weeks of summer vacation with a French-speaking family. I was never even close after that to his grasp of the language.

That's the type of reward I mean. A personal contact, either through daily living or correspondence, gives you something you'll never find in books. You're immediately involved.

And, as someone has said, it's pretty hard to get mad at another country if you have a friend there.

Any exploration of this possibility should go through your local principal. But the address for further information is: Canadian Education Association, 151 Bloor Street West, Toronto 5, Ontario.

Air Cadets

A belated happy birthday to the Air Cadet League of Canada on its 24th birthday. Twenty-eight thousand cadets are honoring the league in an official week that ends this weekend.

Walk into any RCAF base across Canada and chances are that you'll find graduates of the league in uniform—some of them, in fact, station commanders. The league has trained about 300,000 cadets in war and peacetime since 1941.

Quake Hits Northwest Two Killed in Seattle

BRICKS were shaken loose from tops of stores in Seattle business district near King Street railroad

Falling Bricks Injure Many

(Times News Services)

SEATTLE—A major earthquake hit the Pacific northwest today, causing widespread damage and at least two deaths.

There were scores of injuries, many in Seattle from falling debris as some brick facing on older buildings toppled into the street.

A man, identified as Adolphus Lewis, died when he was hit by falling debris from the King Street railroad station here and another man was killed by falling debris at the Fisher Flour Mill on Harbor Island.

Three women died of heart attacks during the quake in Washington.

Buildings swayed in a score of cities as the occupants streamed into the street.

Grand Coulee Dam, in northeast Washington reported the shock was felt for more than 45 seconds. Some circuits at the big hydro-electric dam were knocked out.

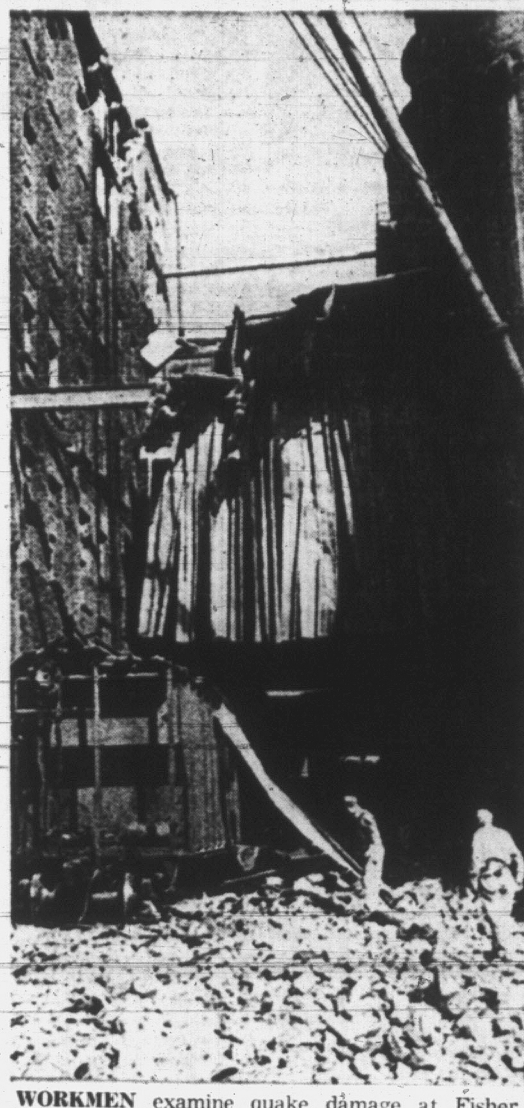

Most damage appeared to be limited to cracked plaster, broken windows and dishes, and snapped wires.

Scientists said there was little danger of a tidal wave.

At Ellensburg, 100 miles east of Seattle, streets were jammed with people who fled from downtown buildings. Some windows were broken and walls cracked.

At Aberdeen, on the coast, the quake was described as a "rolling series of three shocks" that caused buildings to sway. Most were evacuated.

Aussies Send Combat Force To Viet Nam

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced tonight that Australia would provide an infantry battalion for service in South Viet Nam.

200 Viet Cong Claimed Dead In 3 Strikes

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. planes and helicopters and South Vietnamese ground forces have killed an estimated 200 Viet Cong guerrillas in three operations ranging from the Mekong Delta in the south to the sandy coastal plains of central Viet Nam, spokesmen said today.

Two Americans were killed and five others wounded in the actions. This brought the toll of U.S. combat fatalities in Viet Nam to 353 since December, 1961.

U.S. aircraft made two raids and South Vietnamese Skyraider fighter-bombers made a third in the continuing air campaign against North Viet Nam's high-way system. Results varied from "highly successful" to moderate damage.

START PUSH

Aground, the biggest action was in Kien Hoa province, on the coast 60 miles south of Saigon. Government commanders claimed at least 86 guerrillas were killed and 34 captured in the opening phase Wednesday of an attempt to drive a major Viet Cong force into the South China Sea. The assault forces were reported to have suffered only four wounded.

Two U.S. Army advisers were killed and a third was wounded during heavy fighting 80 miles southwest of Saigon. Government units clashed with an estimated Viet Cong company. Government sources claimed 34 Viet Cong were killed. A U.S. military spokesman said government casualties included 16 killed and 50 wounded.

In a third action in Quang Nam province, government forces reported they had killed 41 and captured 26. Two government troops were killed and 11 wounded.

SPACE NEEDLE DINERS ALMOST WENT IN ORBIT

SEATTLE (AP)—"It was just like riding the top of a flagpole," the manager of Seattle's 608-foot-high Space Needle restaurant said after today's earthquake.

"All we lost was a couple of bottles of booze," reported manager Basil Miallis. "This place is built to take it."

The restaurant, built as a feature of the 1962 Seattle World's Fair, had 254 persons for breakfast when the quake hit.

"First, we felt a bounce, and then an oscillation—a whipping around," Miallis said. "Everybody stayed put. No one ran for the elevators. When it was all over, everybody finished breakfast..."

Couple Trapped As Car Flattened

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Coughtry, Seattle, were trapped in their flattened car when a huge section of brick roof gable toppled on it in the old part of the city. It took rescuers 15 minutes to free them. They were taken to a hospital for examination.

Workers in Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia, Aberdeen, Everett, Longview, Centralia, and many other cities streamed into the streets after the quake hit.

Buildings shook and swayed over the entire area. Broken windows, water lines and wires were reported by the hundreds.

The quake was described as a series of at least three rolling shocks that lasted for 45 seconds to a minute.

Heavy damage was done to some capital buildings at Olympia, and the new U.S. post office there was closed for the day because of damage and injuries.

Governor Dan Evans ordered evacuation of the main Capitol building.

Tremor Causes Alarm in City; Little Damage

The powerful earthquake which hit the Pacific Northwest today caused widespread alarm but little damage in British Columbia.

Striking hardest in Washington, the quake was also felt on Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland as far east as Trail.

A number of Victoria residents expressed concern in calls to police and newspapers immediately after the tremor was felt at 8:29 a.m. But essential services were largely unaffected.

Reports of swaying buildings, bouncing ornaments and rattling windows came in from the Island, Okanagan Valley, north-central B.C. and as far as Trail, 300 miles to the east.

William Milne, a seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich said the tremor jarred the needle on his seismograph "right off the drum."

The full force of the quake registered 7 on the magnitude (Richter) scale. The epicentre of the quake was 30 miles southwest of Seattle.

The devastating earthquake which struck Alaska last year registered 8.5 on the Richter scale.

Mr. Milne said the seismograph was still registering tremors a half hour after the initial quake.

Reports of the tremor poured into provincial civil defence headquarters here this morning.

NO SEVERE DAMAGE
"The shocks were felt over a wide part of the province and as far north as Prince Rupert, but there was no severe damage," said W. W. Mathers, director of operations and planning.

There were scattered reports of shattered plaster in buildings on lower Vancouver Island.

Power lines were knocked out for several minutes at up-Island points.

TRIPPED SWITCHES
The shock tripped safety switches in Goward sub-station on Inter-urban Road, cutting off the power supply to Brentwood, Sidney, Langford, Mill Bay, Colwood, Metcheson and Sooke.

In most places power was back on within four minutes.

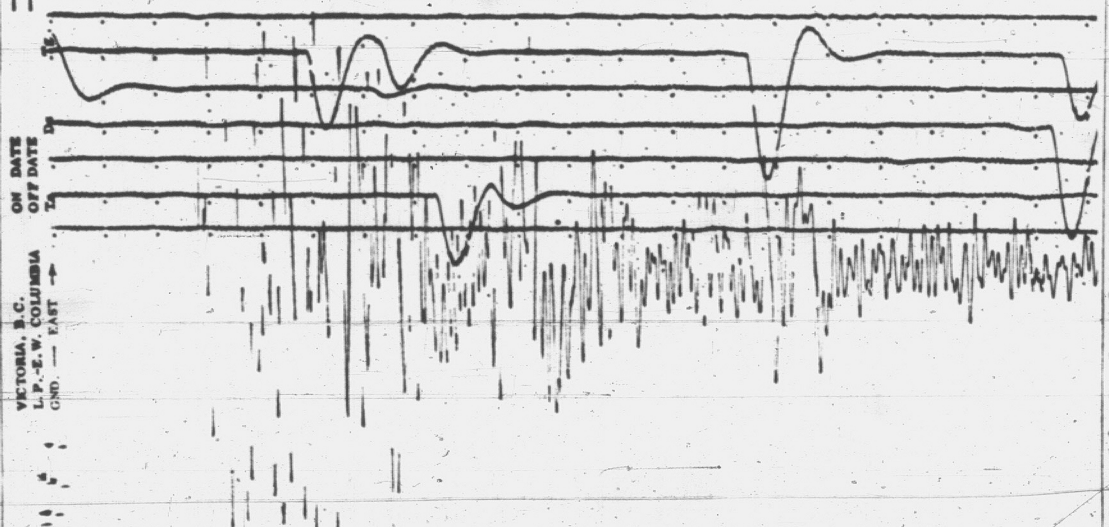

At Port Alberni, civil defence and harbor authorities were placed on stand-by when that area received a sharp tremor.

Butter Price to Rise

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Canadians will be charged an extra two cents for a pound of butter starting May 1, the agriculture department announced today. The agricultural stabilization board will increase its buying price for creamery butter on that date from 53 to 55 cents and the selling price will go up accordingly.

THIS IS AN EARTHQUAKE—Squiggly lines on graph at Dominion Astrophysical Laboratory give picture of shock waves that struck northwest

Pacific coast today. At climax recorder needle jumped off sheet. Thin sharp lines show the actual quake. Thicker lines are machine faults.

U.S. MARINES LAND AT SANTO DOMINGO

400 Killed in Fighting

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI)—U.S. marines took up combat positions around the polo ground refugee centre in Santo Domingo today to protect Americans caught up in the Dominican Republic insurrection that has killed an estimated 400 Dominicans.

Another 1,200 were reported wounded.

The U.S. marine landing was the first in Latin America since 1934 when they landed in Guatemala.

Street fighting was reported in the heart of the capital where rebel forces were strongly entrenched. So far the marines have not been directly involved in the "very tense and very serious" situation. They have fired no shots.

'Threadbare Pretext'
MOSCOW (AP)—The official Soviet news agency Tass charged the United States today with grossly interfering in the internal affairs of the Dominican Republic by landing marines there.

The Soviet reaction came in a dispatch from a Tass correspondent in Washington.

He said the explanation that the marines landed to ensure the security of U.S. citizens was a "threadbare pretext."

No American casualties have been reported.

The fighting was between leftist forces loyal to ousted President Juan Bosch, now in exile in San Juan, and military units which deposed him in 1963.

Rebel move to return him to power began last Saturday.

The so-called loyal force arrayed against the Bosch supporters are under command of Air Force Brig. Gen. Elias Wessin. They appeared to have an edge over the Bosch forces and Wednesday declared the revolution was crushed.

The military overthrew Bosch after he had been in power for 10 months. He was considered too friendly with Cuba's Fidel Castro. Cuban refugees arriving in San Juan from Santo Domingo said the rebels were evacuated to San Juan Wednesday.

The Americans and other foreign nationals were herded into the polo grounds across the street from the Ambassador Hotel, seven miles from the scene of the heaviest fighting in downtown Santo Domingo. The polo grounds themselves were being used for a helicopter ferry service.

Reports from Washington said the French government had de-

Ceasefire Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Organization of American States decided today to call for an immediate ceasefire in the strife-torn Dominican Republic. It also offered its mediation efforts there.

The inter-American body voted to make its ceasefire appeal through the papal representative in Santo Domingo, it was reported.

Seems like they're havin' a population explosion at Albert Head.

Th' Dominican thing is like Viet Nam—they've rushed Americans in in order to get 'em out.

A park that's crowded ain't a park any longer. Git more!

MARKET SUMMARIES

Endako, B.C. Phone Score Good Gains

Two highs were touched on the Vancouver stock exchange. Endako rose 62 cents to a new mark of $18.50 on 5,900 shares atop the mine list and B.C. Telephone featured the industrials with a gain of $2.75 to $72.

Pine Point dropped 25 cents to $35 and losses were general in other mining issues. New Taku went against the trend to gain five to 50 cents. Earliest gained three to 37 cents and ace five to 39 cents.

Kamloops, the volume leader, lost one cent to 69 on 100,000 shares.

OILS

AT NEW YORK prices were mixed as early gains by some blue chips faded and averages wilted slightly. Trading was fairly active.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) reacted severely to a decline in quarterly earnings and sank more than a point.

The top steelmakers showed no response to their rash of greatly improved profits. Fractional losses were shown by U.S. Steel, Republic Steel and Jones and Laughlin, Bethlehem was unchanged.

WOODWARDS SEEK FUNDS ON MARKET

AT MONTREAL stocks were lower in moderate trading. Industrials eased with asbestos off 1/2. CIL added 1/2. Utilities were lower. CPR dropped 1/2.

AT LONDON the market was completely taken by surprise by the call for special deposits by the Bank of England, when a reduction in bank rate had been generally expected. Dealers soon began marking prices down and some selling followed.

Gifts were often a fraction lower.

Dollar stocks were mixed, but leading Canadian issues were inclined to be dull. International Nickel was again easier, while Algonia was an especially dull spot.

UAW Backs Canada-U.S. Auto Pact

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United Auto Workers' Union today urged legislation to compensate workers displaced from their jobs by the Canada-United States agreement on autos and parts.

The UAW endorsed the agreement to end tariffs for producers of most North American motor vehicles and their component parts. But it said Canada is dragging its feet in preparing for workers who are laid off as a result of the agreement.

Leonard Woodcock, vice-president of the UAW, appeared before the House of Representatives today and means committee legislation to implement the U.S. side of the agreement.

Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson signed the pact Jan. 16, but Congress must pass the enabling legislation.

Woodcock also urged Canadian car makers to start paying on price cuts to Canadian consumers.

The UAW represents most of the 1,000,000 workers in the U.S. industry and the bulk of Canada's 65,000 automotive workers.

Industry, Union Sign Steel Pact

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A four-month labor peace pact guaranteed today a continued flow of steel for the booming U.S. economy.

He and R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for the hasty steel industry, signed the temporary truce exchanging postponement of Saturday's scheduled strike for an 11-5-cent hourly pay increase.

But for a while it was touch and go.

The expected routine approval by the Steelworkers' wage policy committee turned into a three-hour debate Wednesday when opponents branded the pact a "tin cup agreement" and implied that top union negotiators were "beggars."

"We all thought it was lost," said one top union source after the hectic session of the 162-man committee, which finally overrode the opposition and approved the agreement.

Less than an hour after the committee's "shouted" approval, Cooper went to McDonald's hotel headquarters. Emerging a few minutes later, Cooper shook hands with McDonald and said, "it's signed."

ISLAND MINE Operating In Month

QWICHAN Copper's Jordan River mine should be back in operation by the end of May.

O. G. MacDonald, spokesman for the company now operating the mine, says work crews have two more areas to clear before the first ore can be shipped out.

The mine was flooded in December, 1963, when a river bank collapsed.

The company ships copper concentrate to Japan.

Last month at a special meeting of shareholders in Vancouver new mine management policies were established. In future operation of the mine the Sheep Creek Company will play a leading part in administration and management.

Earlier this week M. M. Tan and J. S. McIntosh, both of Sheep Creek, were named to the board of directors.

LABOR SHORTAGE Hits Island Mine

TRAIL (CP) — The Coast Copper Co. Ltd. mine near Port Alice is faced with a labor shortage, company president Bruce E. Hurdle reports.

Mr. Hurdle told shareholders at the annual meeting here Tuesday the shortage could affect production.

While the shortage of labor was a trend general to the industry, the remote Vancouver Island location of the company's mine increased its problem, he said.

He said increased tonnage and grade, start of production of magnetite concentrate and increase in copper prices were responsible for a net profit of $1,112,794 during 1964.

GRAN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures broke sharply today as commodities turned generally weak on the board of trade.

Old-crop soybeans were down about six cents a bushel at times but had shown a slight steady tendency in the early afternoon. The grains were off fractions to about a cent.

Flax and barley advanced, rapeseed declined, and oats and rye moved narrowly in active trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Flax advanced more than a cent, aided by broader export demand and reports of a 1,000-ton sale to Britain.

Rapeseed was lower, with selling resiling from recessions in Chicago soybeans.

Arthur Mayse

There is in our town a connoisseur of good food and a friend of fine cooks whose name is Dolly Guelpa. She is ample of spirit and of person. On Tuesday evening at the Cueling Ring, I was one of 700 well-wishers from Victoria, Vancouver and up-Island who drank and ate to Miss Guelpa's health at the Culinary Arts Ball.

Especially, we ate. The drinking was mild and incidental. But the eating was a fact, in fact, the only word for that feast is gorging. Since this annual and delightful affair has already been saluted in our news columns, I will merely repeat here that both Dolly Guelpa and Victoria-Vancouver Island branch of Canadian Restaurant Association, of which she is secretary, were each celebrating their twentieth year together.

Add to this explanation the fact that Dolly has been secretary of the branch since it was formed, and we are ready to buckle down to the main business of the occasion.

As I've indicated, this was to eat... and eat... and eat.

As an appetizer, I suggest a tour of the buffet with branch president and master of ceremonies Bill West.

I have read many times in old romances of "the groaning board," and here it was in all its lavish splendor.

It consisted of trestle tables laid end to end for a distance of about 75 feet. At one end was a thatched roof under which shimmered, steamed and bubbled such Chinese delicacies as sweet-and-sour ribs, chow mein, noodles, egg rolls, and such almond chicken as must be sampled to be believed.

Close by was a separate little groaning board bowlegged from its weight of pies, cakes and pastries.

But these tasty edibles were only the outsiders of the main array.

Let us turn from them and stroll, drooling, along those long, luscious tables.

The dishes, each a work of art as well as some chef's culinary masterpiece, crowded each other cheek by jowl.

Here is a ham from a worthy pig, so glazed and decorated that to carve it seems all but vandalistic.

Salmon from Island waters swim garnished and garlanded toward their date with a plate. To praise one above another is unjust; but two of these noble fish demand special mention.

One is Nanaimo Vocational's toothsome fellow, upon whose baked side is glazed a scene of sailboats and bull-rushes. The other, a splendid, deep-bodied spring, was caught at French Creek specially for the banquet, and rushed south to be cooked and decked.

Here are Cornish hens with their little drumsticks waiting to be grasped and close by a winter scene in potato salad with egg-and-olive penguins. There's a house of sparrows, and a few steps away, a suckling pig whose crisp brown rind and delicate white meat wait the carving knife.

But this wealth of superlative chow was to be devoured as well as admired.

Table after table of diners loaded up for the vast smorgasbord; and while I isn't for me to boast, I was not backward in the attack.

In plain fact, I turned from gourmet to glutton at the first bite, and but for an ominous creaking of my belt, might have crowned my third helping with a fourth.

Victoria Taxes Up Five Mills

By AB KENT

FIRE BUDGET CUT DOUSED BY CHIEF

Victoria Fire Chief John Abbott took the bit between his teeth Wednesday.

While city aldermen plodded through fire budget estimates Mr. Abbott came up with a theory that horse-drawn fire buggies were faster than modern diesels.

He told them: "Horses were faster... and that's a fact."

Spurred on by the support, Chief Abbott galloped on to explain his clipperty-clop idea.

"We made better time when we had horses," he said.

"Every year it takes us longer to get through downtown traffic."

The estimates committee seemed impressed hearing this straight from the horse's mouth and passed the entire fire department budget.

Earlier they had been reluctant to leave the starting post in view of an $18,000 increase for staff and equipment this year.

For a while there were strong odds in favor of cutting personnel.

But the longshot paid off.

Aldermen were powerless to alter a 3.6 mill hike in school tax rate, accounting for 72 per cent of the new tax rate.

The 1965 increase includes .9 of a mill for general debt purposes and an amount equivalent to half a mill to buy regional parkland, provided other Greater Victoria areas enter the green-belt scheme.

Mayor R. B. Wilson commented after the 1 1/2-day council budget-boiling session.

"I would like to commend the staff for their good work and constructive attitude toward achieving a good budget. Adding only 9.10ths of a mill on the general rate makes a very acceptable budget."

Council made the comment a formal resolution, then authorized the solicitor to draw up by-laws enabling tax bills to be worked out.

TAX INCREASE

Since Wednesday morning, aldermen working with department heads stripped a net $74,625 from 1965 spending estimates, $16,100 of it this morning.

Besides paring sums from expected outlays, aldermen padded estimated revenues in a number of cases, including building, plumbing and electrical permits, public scale fees, miscellaneous rents and franchises, police court fines, court and jail rentals.

FULL HEARING PLEDGED

Beer Cafeterias Studied

A.B.C. Hotels Association delegation from Vancouver today was to ask Liquor Control Board Chairman Col. Donald McGugan for permission to operate cafeteria-style beer parlors.

Association president W. S. Wainwright and secretary-manager Roy Corbett were to head the group but no Victoria hotelmen were participating in the delegation, Victoria director James Neeley said.

Col. McGugan indicated they would receive a full hearing. He said the board had not been asked for the change before and was not bound by an self-imposed precedent.

The Vancouver hotel men gave notice earlier this week they would seek permission to have customers order drinks from the bar and carry them back to their tables during slack periods.

This would allow layoff of about 25 per cent of the 3,500 union waiters and bartenders in the province.

REJECT OFFER
Mr. Corbett announced the proposal after Vancouver beer parlor clientele are union workers themselves, they are not likely to contemplate with favor the operation of a non-union premises and the establishment of a precedent for the elimination of union members," he added.

At present, besides a 13-cent-an-hour payment for a health and welfare fund, the Vancouver bartenders receive $2.24 an hour and waiters $1.75 an hour.

James Morrison, president of Vancouver local 676 of the Beverage Dispensers Union, predicted that if the LCB permitted the self-service system it would result in an immediate increase in drunkenness.

"As the majority of beer parlor clientele are union workers themselves, they are not likely to contemplate with favor the operation of a non-union premises and the establishment of a precedent for the elimination of union members," he added.

Excavation Tenders Loom for Museum
Public Works Minister W. N. Chant today said a decision on excavation tenders for the Centennial Museum will be made very soon.

Target date for start of the $7 million centennial complex, which will include a museum building, archives building and administration building—is July 1.

Mr. Chant said two "very good" bids were received for the excavation work and are being examined now.

KABALARIAN ZIP CODE
What's in a Number? Can 007's Name Be As Good As His Bond?

By TERRY IZZARD

Just call me 5-9-5, 1-2-3, 2-2-7.

It's not as exciting as being a 007, but it's not a bad little number.

In fact it's positively my best chance of becoming the world's leading figure.

The people who say so go under the name of the Kabalarian Fraternal organization.

When I attended one of their meetings in Victoria it wasn't long before they had me all figured out.

For according to their philosophy, life is one big sum. The individual's ability to add up to something depends largely on his numerical rating.

If you're a number 1 you stand a good chance of becoming a great leader. You have strength, you're self-reliant and dependable.

What's more my name is Terry. Now rightly or wrongly I've always been proud of the name, despite what anyone says.

But when you transcribe it into the Kabalarian zip-code rating it spells nothing but trouble.

Combine it with a 1942 birth date, add or subtract a little for the placing of the first vowel in the name and your number's up.

My family is easily led and lean too much on other people.

Which would certainly seem to be born out by a distant relative of mine.

At an early age she was led into a beer parlor and to the best of my knowledge is still leaning heavily on the bottle.

The individual categories have nothing to do with social security.

Nuns Defy RC Church On Shelter

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Roman Catholic Church authorities have ordered closure of the Good Shepherd Shelter near Albert Head. But Mother Cecilia Mary says she will defy the instructions.

She said she has the full support of Mother Superior Ursula of St. Mary's Priory to continue operating the shelter for abandoned stray animals despite the order Wednesday from Rev. Andrew Heber of the Benedictines of Westminster Abbey in Mission City.

The shelter, run by the Benedictine order of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, must be abandoned by Tuesday, the order said.

Father Heber said Catholics are surprised to hear stories about "a nun who handles her own finances and disposes of her property as she chooses."

He said he issued the order because of his office as "apostolic visitor to the Sisters of the Love of Jesus," but the nuns say he is not the apostolic visitor.

'Close Order Came from Bishop'

"He is just carrying out Bishop Remi de Roo's orders," said Mother Cecilia Mary.

In a lengthy letter, Father Heber said:

"This obligation is put on you in keeping with the holy vows of stability and obedience which you have vowed to God."

"I realize that it will be a difficult choice for you to make, but I feel it is my obligation to do so in keeping with the directions given by the Congregation of Religions that the authority of the Superior must be established."

The letter continued that much publicity, especially lately, has been given to the shelter, where the nuns care for 100 stray and abandoned cats, dogs and goats.

'Must Make Church View Clear'

He said the church had to make its position clear regarding the shelter at 3842 Duke Road.

"Catholics are not a little surprised and puzzled at the references made in the papers to a nun who handles her own finances and disposes of her property as she chooses," the letter continued.

"Non-Catholics want to hear a definite statement from the church."

"They think that since work at the shelter is being done by nuns it has the approval of ecclesiastical authorities."

"Others are accusing the religious vows to carry out the order."

He quoted a Roman Catholic priest as saying that animal lovers are sometimes cruel in their kindness, destroying the health and fine instincts of animals "by excessive pampering."

He added: "I know that with very short notice, the SPCA or other such agency could take care of the animals in a humane way."

He didn't say so, but the nuns concluded this means putting the animals to death.

Mother Cecilia Mary and Mother Superior Ursula made these points in reply to the letter:

● No rules have been broken;
● No proof of authority exists for Father Heber or Bishop de Roo to order the shelter's closure;

● Only those who started the shelter can close it;
● They are not bound by their religious vows to carry out the order.

● They don't think the bishop could excommunicate them for refusing to close the shelter.

● The nuns cannot be ordered to return to the priory since they have never left it and still belong to it.

● The late Bishop Hill of Victoria gave his blessing to the shelter when it started.

"We shan't do anything," said Mother Cecilia.

"We will just carry on."

Quake Hits Northwest Two Killed in Seattle

BRICKS were shaken loose from tops of stores in Seattle business district near King Street railroad

Falling Bricks Injure Many

(Times News Services)

SEATTLE—A major earthquake hit the Pacific northwest today, causing widespread damage and at least two deaths.

There were scores of injuries, many in Seattle from falling debris as some brick facing on older buildings toppled into the street.

A man, identified as Adolphus Lewis, died when he was hit by falling debris from the King Street railroad station here and another man was killed by falling debris at the Fisher Flour Mill on Harbor Island.

Three women died of heart attacks during the quake in Washington.

Buildings swayed in a score of cities as the occupants streamed into the street.

Grand Coulee Dam, in northeast Washington reported the shock was felt for more than 45 seconds. Some circuits at the big hydro-electric dam were knocked out.

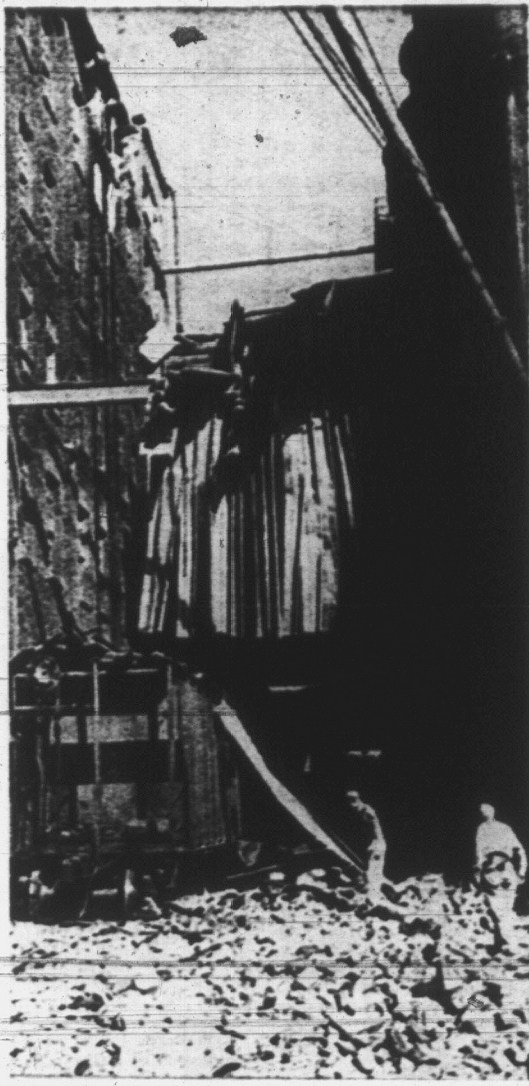

Most damage appeared to be limited to cracked plaster, broken windows and dishes, and snapped wires.

Scientists said there was little danger of a tidal wave.

At Ellensburg, 100 miles east of Seattle, streets were jammed with people who fled from downtown buildings. Some windows were broken and walls cracked.

At Aberdeen, on the coast, the quake was described as a "rolling series of three shocks" that caused buildings to sway. Most were evacuated.

Among the injured in Seattle was a 15-year-old girl whose leg was broken.

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced tonight that Australia would provide an infantry battalion for service in South Viet Nam.

200 Viet Cong Claimed Dead In 3 Strikes

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. planes and helicopters and South Vietnamese ground forces have killed an estimated 200 Viet Cong guerrillas in three operations ranging from the Mekong Delta in the south to the sandy coastal plains of central Viet Nam, spokesmen said today.

Two Americans were killed and five others wounded in the actions. This brought the toll of U.S. combat fatalities in Viet Nam to 353 since December, 1961.

U.S. aircraft made two raids and South Vietnamese Skyraider fighter-bombers made a third in the continuing air campaign against North Viet Nam's highway system. Results varied from "highly successful" to moderate damage.

START PUSH

Aground, the biggest action was in Kien Hoa province, on the coast 60 miles south of Saigon. Government commanders claimed at least 86 guerrillas were killed and 24 captured in the opening phase Wednesday of an attempt to drive a major Viet Cong force into the South China Sea. The assault forces were reported to have suffered only four wounded.

In another action in Kien Hoa province, two U.S. Army advisers were killed and a third was wounded during heavy fighting 80 miles southwest of Saigon.

With an estimated Viet Cong company. Government sources claimed 34 Viet Cong were killed. A U.S. military spokesman said government casualties included 16 killed and 50 wounded.

In a third action in Quang Nam province, government forces reported they had killed 46 and captured 26. Two government troops were killed and 11 wounded.

SPACE NEEDLE DINERS ALMOST WENT IN ORBIT

SEATTLE (AP)—"It was just like riding the top of a flagpole," the manager of Seattle's 606-foot-high Space Needle restaurant said after today's earthquake.

"All we lost was a couple of bottles of booze," reported manager Basil Miaullis. "This place is built to take it."

The restaurant, built as a feature of the 1962 Seattle World's Fair, had 234 persons for breakfast when the quake hit.

"First, we felt a bounce, and then an oscillation—a whipping around," Miaullis said. "Everybody stayed put. No one ran for the elevators. When it was all over, everybody finished breakfast..."

Couple Trapped As Car Flattened

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Coughtry, Seattle, were trapped in their flattened car when a huge section of brick roof gable toppled on it in the old part of the city. It took rescuers 15 minutes to free them. They were taken to a hospital for examination.

Workers in Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia, Aberdeen, Everett, Longview, Centralia, and many other cities streamed into the streets after the quake hit.

Buildings shook and swayed over the entire area. Broken windows, water lines and wires were reported by the hundreds.

The quake was described as a series of at least three rolling shocks that lasted for 45 seconds to a minute.

Heavy damage was done to some capitol buildings at Olympia, and the new U.S. post office there was closed for the day because of damage and injuries.

Tremor Causes Alarm in City; Little Damage

The powerful earthquake which hit the Pacific Northwest today caused widespread alarm but little damage in British Columbia.

Striking hardest in Washington, the quake was also felt on Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland as far east as Trail.

A number of Victoria residents expressed concern in calls to police and newspapers immediately after the tremor was felt at 8:29 a.m. But essential services were largely unaffected.

Reports of swaying buildings, bouncing ornaments and rattling windows came in from the Island, Okanagan Valley, north-central B.C. and as far as Trail, 300 miles to the east.

William Milne, a seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich said the tremor jarred the needle on his seismograph "right off the drum."

The full force of the quake registered 7 on the magnitude (Richter) scale. The epicentre of the quake was 30 miles south-west of Seattle.

(The devastating earthquake which struck Alaska last year registered 8.5 on the Richter scale.)

Mr. Milne said the seismograph was still registering tremors a half hour after the initial quake.

Reports of the tremor poured into provincial civil defence headquarters here this morning.

NO SEVERE DAMAGE

"The shocks were felt over a wide part of the province and as far north as Prince Rupert, but there was no severe damage," said W. W. Mathers, director of operations and planning.

There were scattered reports of shattered plaster in buildings on lower Vancouver Island.

Power lines were knocked out for several minutes at up-Island points.

The shock tripped safety switches in Goward sub-station on Inter-Urban Road, cutting off the power supply to Brentwood, Sidney, Langford, and Bay, Colwood, Metcheson and Sooke.

In most places power was back on within four minutes.

At Port Alberni, civil defence and harbor authorities were placed on stand-by when that area received a sharp tremor.

Residents of the port city spent a few anxious moments fearing a tidal wave. Just over a year ago the city was badly hit by a tidal wave in the wake of the Alaska earthquake.

The last earthquake to be felt in this area occurred in 1949. It was about the same size as today's tremor but there was heavier damage up-Island.

CEASEFIRE TALKS START OVER BORDER

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Talks are being held on a cease-fire between Indian and Pakistani forces in the disputed Rann of Kutch border area, an Indian official spokesman said here today.

The talks are being held through intermediaries, he added.

The spokesman declined to give details.

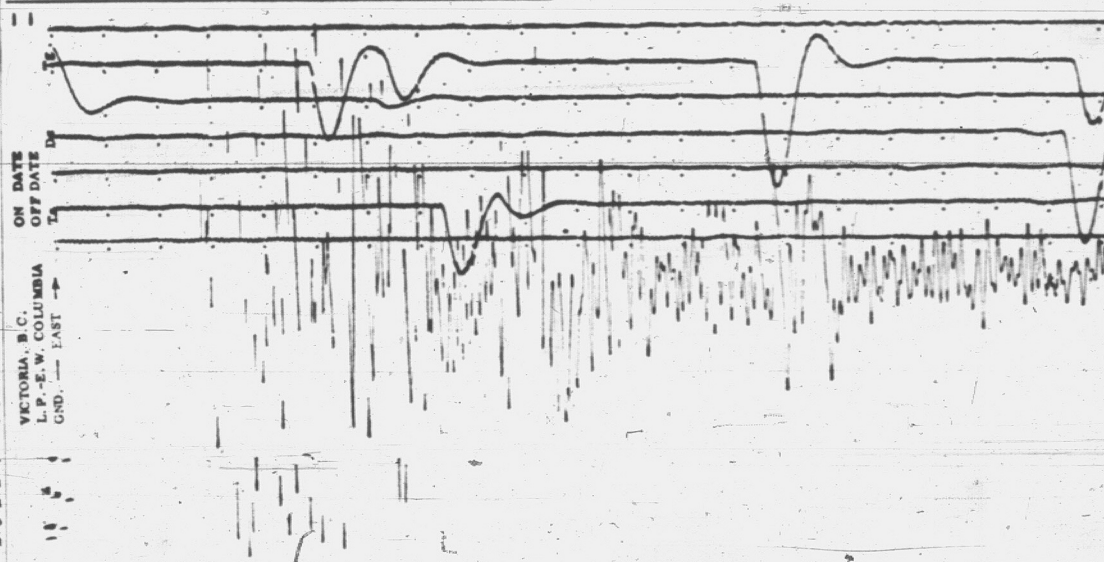

Questioned about reports of a favorable Indian response to a ceasefire and withdrawal proposals by Britain, he said he knew nothing about this.

However, in Parliament today S. N. Dwivedi, leader of the Praja Socialist Party, said there was a rumor a ceasefire agreement would be concluded soon.

U.S. MARINES LAND AT SANTO DOMINGO

400 Killed in Fighting

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI)—U.S. marines took up combat positions around the polo ground refugee centre in Santo Domingo today to protect Americans caught up in the Dominican Republic insurrection that has killed an estimated 400 Dominicans.

American troops landed in Santo Domingo today.

The U.S. marine landing was the first in Latin America since 1928 when they landed in Guatemala.

Street fighting was reported in the heart of the capital where rebel forces were strongly entrenched. So far the marines have not been directly involved in the "very tense and very serious" situation. They have fired no shots.

'Threadbare Pretext'

MOSCOW (AP)—The official Soviet news agency Tass charged the United States today with grossly interfering in the internal affairs of the Dominican Republic by landing marines there.

The Soviet reaction came in a dispatch from a Tass correspondent in Washington.

He said the explanation that the marines landed to ensure the security of U.S. citizens was a "threadbare pretext."

No American casualties have been reported.

The fighting was between leftist forces loyal to ousted President Juan Bosch, now in exile in San Juan, and military units which deposed him in 1963. A

Ceasefire Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Organization of American States decided today to call for an immediate ceasefire in the strife-torn Dominican Republic. It also offered its mediation efforts there.

The inter-American body vowed to make its ceasefire appeal through the papal representative in Santo Domingo. It was reported.

French Ships Off to Island

PARIS (AP)—The French government today ordered two warships to the Dominican Republic to evacuate any French citizens who feel their lives are in danger.

An announcement said two ships now in harbor at Fort de France, Martinique, will go to the vicinity of Santo Domingo to await developments. Martinique is a French island about 600 miles southeast of Santo Domingo.

EMERGENCY IN QUESNEL AS CREEK RUNS WILD

QUESNEL (CP)—A state of emergency was declared in this Cariboo town today as flood-swollen Baker Creek swept away a garage and endangered at least one home.

Some 400 truckloads of earth were swept away by the creek and civic crews were ordered into the Slaughterhouse Hill area with sandbags.

Mayor Alec Fraser, in declaring the emergency, ordered house-movers into the district to attempt to haul several homes to firmer ground.

Commons Critics Dissect Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—The life of the minority Liberal government goes on the line again today in the Commons but the element of suspense is lacking. The government is expected to vote down a New Democratic non-confidence motion criticizing the new budget for two omissions: Higher old age pensions and bigger tax cuts for low-income brackets.

The Liberals survived three other tests of confidence in the early days of the 1965 session when opposition MPs who don't want an election now stayed away in droves.

The NDP motion was introduced Wednesday by the party's financial critic, Colin Cameron (Nanaimo-Cowichan - the Islands), as the six-day budget debate opened.

Mr. Cameron said he wanted to make a Conservative non-confidence motion more specific.

The Conservative financial critic, George Nowlan (Digby - Annapolis - Kings), opened the debate with a decisive analysis of the budget submitted Monday night by Finance Minister Gordon.

VOTE AGAIN MONDAY

His motion, which comes to a vote Monday, criticized the government for failing to repeal the 11-per-cent sales tax on production machinery and to provide tax relief to lower-income people and pension increases in the face of the rising cost of living.

Mr. Cameron's amendment said flat-rate pensions should have been increased to $100 a month from $75 and that basic income tax exemptions should have been increased to $3,000 from $2,000 for married taxpayers and to $1,500 from $1,000 for single persons.

Mr. Nowlan said the 10-per-cent income tax cut announced in the budget is "penny-pinching" and purely political. It gave relief to those who needed it the least and would save most taxpayers a mere $3 this year. Wealthy people had received a $900 reduction.

Mr. Nowlan said the sales tax on production machinery is "stupid" and has hurt the economy badly. Universities faced a financial crisis and needed more federal aid.

Mr. Cameron said the tax cut is too small to stimulate the economy and will annoy many Canadians when they find out how little benefit they receive. There was no guarantee rich people would spend their extra $600 on Canadian consumer goods or services.

He called for sharply increased spending on higher education, urban renewal and programs aimed at eliminating unemployment.

Martin 'Aware' of Que. Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said in the Commons Tuesday he became aware last summer that Quebec was negotiating a cultural exchange "accord" with France.

He told Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary-North) that he discussed the "accord" last December with then French Ambassador Raymond Bousquet and that his department took part in the Quebec-France discussions "well before" they were concluded in February.

The three parties had agreed that an exchange of diplomatic notes between Canada and France would be necessary to give the Quebec "accord" its validity in international law. Mr. Martin said the accord was signed and the covering notes were exchanged Feb. 27. Mr. Martin said earlier outside the Commons that an exchange of notes between Paris and Ottawa and Quebec and France were signed simultaneously.

Aussies Send Combat Force
To Viet Nam

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced tonight that Australia would provide an infantry battalion for service in South Viet Nam.

The government decided to do so after considering a request by the government of South Viet Nam for more Australian military aid, Menzies said.

Announcing the decision in the House of Representatives, the prime minister said the action followed close consultation with the United States.

"There can be no doubt of the gravity of the situation in South Viet Nam," he declared.

There was "ample evidence to show that with the support of the North Vietnamese regime and other Communist powers, the Viet Cong have been preparing on a more substantial scale than before, insurgency action designed to destroy South Vietnamese government control."

In Sydney, Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell demanded an urgent parliamentary debate on the government's decision to send combat forces to South Viet Nam.

He said the federal parliamentary Labor party would discuss the announcement Tuesday and he would demand the debate after question time that day.

In Hong Kong, Labor Senator R. Turnbull said the sending of Australian troops to fight the Viet Cong would do incalculable harm to the country's prestige in Asia.

Australia should send troops only at the request of the United Nations, he said.

The prime minister said it was Australia's judgment that the decision to commit a battalion, about 800 men, was the most realistic and effective contribution Australia could make to the defence of the region.

LIJ SENDS THANKS

He read to the House a letter from President Johnson thanking Australia for its support.

The president said the Australian action proved once again the deep ties between Australia and the U.S. in the defence of freedom in Southeast Asia.

In a simultaneous statement Defence Minister Senator Shane Paltridge said the battalion would be the 1st Battalion, Royal Australian Regiment.

The battalion would be deployed with U.S. forces, to see-

Two Men Killed
In Seattle Area

(Times News Services)

SEATTLE—A major earthquake hit the Pacific northwest today, causing widespread damage and at least two deaths.

There were scores of injuries, many in Seattle from falling debris as some brick facing on older buildings toppled into the street.

A man, identified as Adolphus Lewis, died when he was hit by falling debris from the King Street railroad station here and another man was killed by falling debris at the Fisher Flour Mill on Harbor Island.

Three women died of heart attacks during the quake in Washington.

Buildings swayed in a score of cities as the occupants streamed into the street.

Grand Coulee Dam, in northeast Washington reported the shock was felt for more than 45 seconds. Some circuits at the big hydro-electric dam were knocked out.

Most damage appeared to be limited to cracked plaster, broken windows and dishes, and snapped wires.

Scientists said there was little danger of a tidal wave.

At Ellensburg, 100 miles east of Seattle, streets were jammed with people who fled from downtown buildings. Some windows were broken and walls cracked.

At Aberdeen, on the coast, the quake was described as a "rolling series of three shocks" that caused buildings to sway. Most were evacuated.

Among the injured in Seattle was a 15-year-old girl whose leg was broken.

Couple Trapped As Car Flattened

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Coughtry, Seattle, were trapped in their flattened car when a huge section of brick roof gable toppled on it in the old part of the city. It took rescuers 15 minutes to free them. They were taken to a hospital for examination.

Workers in Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia, Aberdeen, Everett, Longview, Centralia, and many other cities streamed into the streets after the quake hit.

Buildings shook and swayed over the entire area. Broken windows, water lines and wires were reported by the hundreds.

The quake was described as a series of at least three rolling shocks that lasted for 45 seconds to a minute.

Heavy damage was done to some capitol buildings at Olympia, and the new U.S. post office there was closed for the day because of damage and injuries.

B.C. Ferry Tieup
Possible Friday

Will there be a wildcat tie-up of Swartz Bay ferry terminal Friday?

Both management and government employees' association representatives said today there are a great many rumors suggesting it but they are banking on it being just talk.

"There are all kinds of rumors going around but so far we haven't been able to pin anything down," said Monty Aldous, manager of B.C. Ferry Authority. "The rumors only involve Swartz Bay."

E. O'Connor, president of the B.C. Government Employees' Association in Vancouver, told The Times:

"We received a phone call Wednesday from an official who has to remain nameless advising us there were rumors abroad that there would be a work stoppage Friday."

"We have checked with our representatives in the field and as far as they are concerned the rumors are unfounded. But we can't guarantee anything."

Several ferry workers told the Times that if the shop steward was not reinstated quickly "the ferries will be tied right up."

SEEMS HEARING

"It is a fact a man was suspended," said Mr. O'Connor. "He has applied for a hearing under grievance procedure and we wrote a letter to the civil service commission Wednesday asking for a hearing."

He declined any comment on the reported meetings. According to reports from some of the ferry workers, the union seems to be management's refusal to meet with employee representatives at any time to discuss a working agreement.

They charge that the ships are undermanned and the men underpaid.

"Several times the ferries would have been stopped from sailing if a federal inspector had been around because they left port without the required number of crew who had lifeboat certificates," said one.

"Management is trying to make everyone do the work of two."

EMERGENCY IN QUESNEL
AS CREEK RUNS WILD

QUESNEL (CP)—A state of emergency was declared in this Cariboo town today as flood-swollen Baker Creek swept away a garage and endangered at least one home.

Some 400 truckloads of earth were swept away by the creek and civic crews were ordered into the Slaughterhouse Hill area with sandbags.

Mayor Alec Fraser, in declaring the emergency, ordered house-movers into the district to attempt to haul several homes to firmer ground.

OVER BORDER

NEW DELHI (Reuters)

Talks are being held on a cease-fire between Indian and Pakistani forces in the disputed Rann of Kutch border area, an Indian official spokesman said here today.

The talks are being held through intermediaries, he added.

The spokesman declined to give details.

Questioned about reports of a favorable Indian response to a cease-fire and withdrawal proposals by Britain, he said he knew nothing about this.

However, in Parliament today S. N. Dwivedi, leader of the Praja Socialist Party, said there was a rumor a cease-fire agreement would be concluded tonight.

Stop-Work Meet Called By Fishermen

VANCOUVER (CP)—The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) has called a stop-work meeting of some 400-500 lower mainland herring fishermen.

Secretary Homer Stevens said the meeting, set for Friday morning, was called because fishing companies have failed to live up to an agreement on medical coverage for fishermen.

FOR METCHOSIN HALL

Reprieve From Hammer

Metchosin Hall will stay. The 26-year-old hall was given a reprieve this week from the wrecker's hammer.

Chief reason for the stay of execution is that the community can't afford another building.

On the other hand, no contractor will accept the job of repair work.

So residents in the area look like having to buckle down and do the job themselves.

Indian 'Policemen' To Halt Trespass

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indians are to police each of their seven reserves to stop white trespassers.

Band council Tuesday decided to appoint "policemen" who, besides patrolling the reserve, will sell fishing permits to non-Indians on a commission basis.

Some band members opposed the move because of previous experience with trespassers.

Band secretary Louise Underwood said there had been property damage in the past. However, the objects were assured their property would be protected.

Council will erect "no trespass" signs and enforce prosecutions if need be.

FISH PERMITS
It was agreed to continue selling fishing permits to non-Indians but the executive is to consider an increase in the $2 fee.

Arthur Mayse

There is in our town a connoisseur of good food and a friend of fine cooks whose name is Dolly Guelpa. She is ample of spirit and of person. On Tuesday evening at the Curling Rink, I was one of 700 well-wishers from Victoria, Vancouver and up-Island who drank and ate to Miss Guelpa's health at the Culinary Arts Ball.

Especially, we ate. The drinking was mild and incidental. But the eating was not; in fact, the only word for that feast is "gargantuan."

Since this annual and delightful affair has already been saluted in our news columns, I will merely repeat here that both Dolly Guelpa and Victoria-Vancouver Island branch of Canadian Restaurant Association, of which she is secretary, were each celebrating their twentieth year together.

Add to this explanation the fact that Dolly has been secretary of the branch since it was formed, and we are ready to buckle down to the main business of the occasion.

As I've indicated, this was to eat . . . and eat . . . and eat.

As an appetizer, I suggest a tour of the buffet with branch president and master of ceremonies Bill West.

I have read many times in old romances of "the groaning board," and here it was in all its lavish splendor.

It consisted of trestle tables laid end to end for a distance of about 75 feet. At one end was a thatched roof under which shimmered, steamed and bubbled such Chinese delicacies as sweet-and-sour ribs, chow mein, noodles, egg rolls, and such almond chicken as must be sampled to be believed.

Close by was a separate little groaning board bowlegged from its weight of pies, cakes and pastries.

But these tasty edibles were only the outsiders of the main array.

Let us turn from them, and stroll, drooling, along those long, luscious tables.

The dishes, each a work of art as well as some chef's crowning masterpiece, crowdy each other cheek by jowl.

Here is a ham from a worthy pig, so glazed and decked that to carve it seems all but vandalistic.

Salmon from Island waters swim garnished and garlanded, toward their date with a plate. To praise one above another is unjust; but two of these noble fish demand special mention.

One is Nanaimo Vocational's toothsome fellow, upon whose baked side is glazed a scene of sailboats and bull-rushes. The other, a splendid, deep-bodied spring, was caught at French Creek specially for the banquet, and rushed south to be cooked and decked.

Here are Cornish hens with their little drumsticks waiting to be grasped, and close by, a winter scene in potato-kidney with egg-and-olive penguins, handiwork of a navy petty officer. There's a house of sparrows, and a few steps away, a suckling pig whose crisp brown rind and delicate white meat wait the carving knife.

But this wealth of superlative chow was to be devoured as well as admired.

Table after table of diners loaded up for the vast smorgasbord; and while I isn't for me to boast, I was not backward in the attack.

In plain fact, I turned from gourmet to glutton at the first bite, and but for an ominous creaking of my belt, might have crowned my third helping with a fourth.

Victoria Taxes Up Five Mills

By AB KENT

City council today struck a 1965 mill rate of 62.9, an increase of 5 mills over 1964.

HORSE FASTER THAN ENGINE, SAYS CHIEF

Victoria Fire Chief John Abbott took the bit between his teeth Wednesday.

While city aldermen plodded through fire budget estimates, Mr. Abbott came up with a theory that horse-drawn fire buggies were faster than modern diesels.

He told them: "Horses were faster . . . and that's a fact."

This comment reigned in support from Ald. Geoff Edgewood, who chimed in: "I can understand that."

Spurred on by the support, Chief Abbott galloped on to explain his clipper-clip idea.

"We made better time when we had horses," he said. "Every year it takes us longer to get through downtown traffic."

The estimates committee seemed impressed hearing this straight from the horse's mouth and passed the entire fire department budget.

Earlier they had been reluctant to leave the starting post in view of an $18,000 increase for staff and equipment this year.

For a while there were strong odds in favor of cutting personnel.

But the longshot paid off.

Aldeimen were powerless to alter a 3.6 mill hike in school tax rate, accounting for 72 per cent of the new tax rate.

The 1965 increase includes .9 of a mill for general debt purposes and an amount equivalent to half a mill to buy regional parkland, provided other Greater Victoria areas enter the green-belt scheme.

Mayor R. B. Wilson commented after the 1½-day council-budget-boiling session.

"I would like to commend the staff for their good work and constructive attitude toward achieving a good budget. Adding only 9.10ths of a mill on the general rate makes a very acceptable budget."

Council made the comment a formal resolution, then authorized the solicitor to draw up by-laws enabling tax bills to be worked out.

TAX INCREASE

Since Wednesday morning, aldermen working with department heads stripped a net $74,625 from 1965 spending estimates, $16,100 of it this morning.

Besides paring sums from expected outlays, aldermen padded estimated revenues in a number of cases, including building, plumbing, and electrical permit fees, public scale fees, miscellaneous rents and franchises, police court fines, court and jail rentals.

This would allow layoff of 25 per cent of the 3,500 union waiters and bartenders in the province.

Mr. Corbett announced the proposal after Vancouver beer parlor workers rejected an offer of a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase spread over three years. They seek 25 cents over two years and have asked for a government-supervised strike vote.

Nuns Defy RC Church On Shelter

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Roman Catholic Church authorities have ordered closure of the Good Shepherd Shelter near Albert Head. But Mother Cecilia Mary says she will defy the instructions.

She said she has the full support of Mother Superior Ursula of St. Mary's Priory to continue operating the shelter for abandoned stray animals despite the order Wednesday from Rev. Andrew Heber of the Benedictines of Westminster Abbey in Mission City.

The shelter, run by the Benedictine order of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, must be abandoned by Tuesday, the order said.

Father Heber said Catholics are surprised to hear stories about "a nun who handles her own finances and disposes of her property as she chooses."

He said he issued the order because of his office as "apostolic visitor to the Sisters of the Love of Jesus," but the nuns say he is not the apostolic visitor.

'Close Order Came from Bishop'

"He is just carrying out Bishop Remi de Roo's orders," said Mother Cecilia Mary.

In a lengthy letter, Father Heber said:

"This obligation is put on you in keeping with the holy vows of stability and obedience which you have vowed to God."

"I realize that it will be a difficult choice for you to make, but I feel it is my obligation to do so in keeping with the directions given by the Congregation of Religions that the authority of the Superior must be established and that the apostolate of the sisters be exercised in keeping with their constitution. "Included in this obligation to return to the priory is that of childlike obedience to your legitimate superior in keeping with the teaching of Holy Rule and straightening out in matters of honesty according to prescription of Canon Law and your constitution."

The letter continued that much publicity, especially lately, has been given to the shelter, where the nuns care for 100 stray and abandoned cats, dogs and goats.

'Must Make Church View Clear'

He said the church had to make its position clear regarding the shelter at 3842 Duke Road.

"Catholics are not a little surprised and puzzled at the references made in the papers to a nun who handles her own finances and disposes of her property as she chooses," the letter continued.

"Non-Catholics want to hear a definite statement from the church."

"They think that since work at the shelter is being done by nuns it has the approval of ecclesiastical authorities."

"Others are accusing the church of excessive concern for animals and think that perhaps she is benefiting by the shelter."

Father Heber said he knows his action will be regarded as an indication of cruelty to animals.

"I wish it were not taken as such," he said.

There was a legitimate area for nuns to care for animals "as long as it is done in the spirit of obedience to the proper authorities."

"But I share the conviction of many who think that the work done at the shelter is not in the best interest of animal welfare."

"We will just carry on," said Mother Cecilia.

"No one has the authority to close the shelter except those who started it."

● They don't think the bishop could excommunicate them for refusing to close the shelter.

● The nuns cannot be ordered to return to the priory since they have never left it and still belong to it.

● The late Bishop Hill of Victoria gave his blessing to the shelter when it started.
